. . . U.S. Policy Is To Help Viet Nam Beat Reds

Washington (AP) — Henry Cabot Lodge conferred with President Kennedy Thursday about his new assignment as U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam and declined to reply directly when asked if any policy changes are in the works.

"I think," he told newsmen, "United States policy is to help the Republic of Viet Nam win and maintain its freedom against Communist terrorism. Anything that helps that policy we are in favor of and anything that hinders it we are opposed to."

Lodge, the No. 2 man on the Republican ticket which opposed Kennedy in 1960, spent about 30 minutes with the President.

He plans to leave here Saturday for his new post. En route he will meet in Hawaii with his predecessor, Frederick E. Nolting, who said on departure from Saigon Thursday:

"I am sad to leave before the job of quelling the Communist menace here is finished, but I'm sure that the job will be done and the Communists beaten."

Lodge was asked whether he thinks the religious dispute in Viet Nam hinders the carrying out of U.S. policy there. Violence has marked Buddhist protests against their treatment by the regime headed by President Ngo Dinh Diem, a Roman Catholic.

Lodge said he would withhold any analysis until he has had a chance to appraise the situation in Viet Nam.

. . . 10 REFUGEES ESCAPE

Miami, Fla. (AP) — U.S. fighter jets and a Coast Guard seaplane circled helplessly as a Cuban naval force strafed and then kidnaped 19 anti-Fidel Castro refugees on a tiny British island in the Bahamas, a Coast Guard pilot related Thursday night.

Ten other refugees escaped from the two Cuban torpedo boats and a helicopter. One of the group, which arrived in Miami Thursday night, said engine trouble caused their predicament on the uninhabited cay just 45 miles north of Cuba.

Coast Guard pilot, Lt. J. E. Mitts, 30, of Denver, said the Cuban gunboats trained "guns on us, aircraft and small arms. It looked like each torpedo boat had a 20 millimeter gun mounted aft." The sandy-haired, slightly built Mitts said no firing was observed.

Tuesday the Coast Guard said the incident occurred Tuesday and that its patrol boat came across the scene on Anquilla Cay at 4:05 p.m. The crewmen aboard the twin-engine airplane radioed for help and, in all, 8 American jet fighters responded.

State Department Press Officer Richard Phillips said in Washington the U.S. aircraft could not intervene under international law because the action was on British territory. He said the British made the request to take the survivors to Key West, Fla. from there they were brought to Miami.

Coast Guard co-pilot P. R. Lewis, 27, Rochester, N.Y., said the two Cuban boats were 95 to 100 feet long, each with a torpedo tube on either side. A radio man, flight engineer and a photographer also were aboard the American patrol craft. Pictures made by the camera man, however, were classified and not released.

Others Unknown

The formal charge accused them of being concerned "with others unknown" in the pre-dawn raid on the Glasgow-London mail train a week ago.

A man and two women were also charged with receiving more than $3,332 in stolen banknotes.

They were identified as Mrs. Rene Boal of the same address as William Boal, and Mary and Alfred Pilgrim.

The 5 were arrested in raids carried out by police Thursday and late Wednesday night in operations extending to Bournemouth.

Interrogated

They were brought to police headquarters at Aylesbury in Buckinghamshire—the county where the train was ambushed—and spent the day under close interrogation.

After the long grilling, a police spokesman said no more arrests were expected immediately.

Wednesday night police found about $280,000 in two cars at Bournemouth and captured two of the men after a street battle. The two women and the other man were arrested in London.

Checking

Bank tellers spent most of Thursday counting and checking the money.

A Bournemouth woman who tipped off the police about the suspects arrested in the south coast town left her home to stay with friends.

"I don't want to say anything about it at all," she told reporters. "It's all very frightening." She was identified as Mrs. Ethel Emily Clark, a widow.

Crash Kills Lincoln Man

. . . VICTIM WAS STATE EMPLOYEE

Henry E. Mittelberg, 57, of 948 Whittier, was killed Thursday afternoon in a car-pickup truck collision at the intersection of Burlington Ave. and West A St., about a mile west of the Lincoln city limits.

Mittelberg was alone in his car. He was paint foreman for the Nebraska Penal Complex.

He was driving home eastbound on West A from work at the reformatory. His car was in right-angle collision with a southbound pickup driven by Dan Lovercheck, 19, of 2244 E.

Lovercheck was listed in good condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital. He was being held for observation, Deputy County Atty. Ron Lahners said.

Witnesses said the collision sounded like "a falling truck-load of steel."

Locked Together

Evidence showed that the two vehicles crashed and locked together in the middle of the intersection and plunged southeast into a ditch, coming to rest against a row of trees.

The mangled front ends of both car and pickup remained meshed together.

The victim's body was thrown from the car and lay partially under his vehicle. Lovercheck and a passerby moved the body from under the twisted wreckage.

The pickup was owned by Condon Auto Electric Inc., of 1822 N. Lovercheck was an employee of the firm.

Under Investigation

Lahners said the accident is still under investigation. Stop signs at the intersection halt north-south traffic.

Mittelberg's death was the 197th in Nebraska traffic this year, compared with 210 on the same date in 1962. It was the 8th Lancaster County traffic fatality this year.

. . . Recover Part Of Loot

London (AP) — More loot from Britain's great train robbery turned up Thursday night and two men were formally charged with helping to stage the $7 million holdup.

Police said the new find was discovered at Moordown, near the seaside resort of Bournemouth. The size of the cache was not disclosed.

The accused men were identified as Roger John Cowdery and William Boal, both Londoners. Police said it was expected they will appear in court.

Wary

Jose Manuel Fernandez, leader of the anti-Castroites, said the 10 survivors escaped by hiding in the rocks. Arriving with Fernandez by bus from Key West were 5 other lean, deeply tanned men, a weary but smiling woman, two boys and a girl.

"Twenty-nine refugees left Mantanzas Province (in Cuba) in a 60-foot speedboat flying the American flag," Fernandez said. "The boat developed engine trouble . . . in order to repair the boat, all of us went ashore. All 29 were on the beach when a Cuban helicopter came over and strafed us."

"The helicopter was followed by two Cuban torpedo boats. Castro's sailors from the two boats came to shore and captured 19, including women and children. Those who escaped hid in the rocks."

Fernandez said the escape boat was going to take them to its base. He said he did not know the location of the base, except that it was out of Cuban waters.

The 10 who escaped the Cuban boats were carried to Key West by the U.S. Coast Guard Vessel Ariadne. Immigration officials escorted the group here.

In London, the British Foreign Office said a frigate has been dispatched to investigate the incident and a protest to Cuba would be in order if it proves correct that Cuban forces went on the British island.

Board Will Not Delay Meredith's Graduation

Jackson, Miss. (AP) — The State College Board overrode Gov. Ross Barnett Thursday and refused to delay the graduation of James Meredith from the University of Mississippi.

The board split along factional political lines and voted 6-5 in favor of a subcommittee report recommending "no action be taken by the committee or by the board."

The subcommittee warned intervention in university administrative affairs probably would cause all state universities and colleges to lose accreditation.

Investigation

Barnett had asked the college board—formally the board of trustees of state institutions of higher learning—to delay the graduation of the 30-year-old Kosciusko Negro pending an investigation into whether Meredith's statements violated a university directive against inflammatory remarks.

Subcommittee Chairman Tally Riddell of Quitman quoted an opinion by State Atty. Gen. Joe Patterson saying "whether or not Meredith's statements are contrary to the directive of the chancellor is a factual matter for the determination of university authorities."

Riddell read a statement from Chancellor J. D. Williams saying the university "decided that neither Meredith nor any other student in similar circumstances could justifiably be expelled from the university."

Had Right

In his opinion, Patterson said the university had the right to expell Meredith if his conduct would have brought the expulsion of any other student.

Riddell noted the college board was under federal court injunction not to interfere with Meredith's continued attendance and was on accreditation probation contingent upon permitting no political interference.

After the board voted to accept the subcommittee report over the protests of Barnett's 5 appointees, the governor commented, "I guess that ends it."

3 Charged In Feathers, Tar Hoax

Los Angeles (UPI) — A woman, tarred and feathered and left in a burning house, and two other persons were arrested late Thursday on charges of arson and conspiracy.

Mrs. Katherine Harwell, in General Hospital for treatment of severe burns on her torso, face and hands, admitted earlier Thursday the incident was a hoax and implicated Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis, property owners in the suburban city of Walnut.

But there is still no clear explanation for the arson behind the hoax — other than it was planned to "stir up a racial incident," Mrs. Harwell said she permitted the Lewis couple to apply tar and feathers to her body.

Firemen rescued Mrs. Harwell from the burning house in Walnut Tuesday night.

She told investigators 3 white men had burst into the house, applied tar and feathers, bound her and set the place ablaze.

She said the men, whom she did not recognize, called her a "nigger lover" and tore off her outer garments.

Condemned

The house was condemned as unfit for human habitation and Mrs. Harwell said she was cleaning it out with the help of a Negro handyman named Jimmy Jackson.

Deputies said her original story "did not sound right" so they submitted her to renewed questioning Thursday afternoon and she admitted the incident was a hoax.

She said the plan was to call the fire department immediately after the house was set ablaze by her asserted confederates. The fire department, however, did not reach the scene until the flames had endangered her.

Jackson was nowhere to be found at the time. But he was picked up later and also admitted the incident was a hoax, according to deputies.

Mrs. Harwell also implicated a baby-sitter, Louise Smith, in the case and deputies said later Mrs. Smith admitted setting fire to the house.

Integrated Store Hit By 'Bomb'

Birmingham, Ala. (UPI) — A tear gas bomb exploded Thursday in a crowded department store which recently integrated its lunch counters. The acid fumes sent scores of panic-stricken shoppers staggering from the building gasping for air, and many collapsed on the sidewalks.

At least 16 persons were taken to two hospitals, some in an unconscious condition. Those hospitalized were treated with oxygen, examined and eventually released.

Witnesses said the bomb was set off by a man in a blue business suit.

Several employees of the store, Loveman's, said the man calmly rode an escalator down to the first floor, tossed a beer-can-size bomb into a trash can and then fled through a side door.

"It exploded immediately and a thick, heavy smoke spread all over the first floor and into the basement and the second floor," one of the employees said.

The bombing apparently was the first major act of retaliation against a desegregation plan accepted earlier this summer by 6 major downtown stores. The desegregation plan was put into effect following the most extensive racial demonstration in the nation's history.

Twin Towers Builders Win Race With Time

Contractors for the University of Nebraska's new Twin Towers dormitories won their race with the calendar Thursday and the $80,000 bonus promised for early completion.

NU Business Manager Carl Donaldson inspected the $4.5 million dollar structures and reported that he will recommend to the chancellor that the bonus be paid.

Contractors sharing in the $80,000 bonus are Lippert Brothers, Oklahoma City, general contractor; Martin Cochran, plumbing; Lincoln; Commonwealth Electric, Lincoln; and O'Keefe Elevator, Omaha.

The Aug. 15 deadline was set by University officials for construction completion bonuses in order to meet the increasing demand for student housing.

The 13-story towers, named after Louise Pound and Willa Cather, will house nearly 1,000 students. The towers will eventually house University coeds. This fall, however, the Pound Hall tower will be used by men students, and Cather Hall for women. The structure also includes a central dining hall.

Furnishings, equipment and carpeting still remain to be installed in much of the structure, which will be the tallest college housing unit in the Midwest.

Vandals have caused damage estimated by police at several thousand dollars to a vacant house at 2956 No. 47th. Police said they were sure juveniles were responsible for the vandalism, which included breaking windows, tearing down furnace pipes and knocking holes in ceilings and walls. CHIEFS OK'D TEST BAN

Washington (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said Thursday the Joint Chiefs of Staff held long, hard discussions before deciding unanimously to support "in the final form" the limited nuclear test-ban treaty.

They came to that conclusion without "pressure" or "arm twisting" from their Pentagon superiors, Taylor, chairman of the top military command, declared in reply to senators' questions.

He said the joint chiefs were consulted in advance of negotiations leading to the treaty and had full access to all communications between Moscow and Washington during the negotiations in Russia.

Opportunity

"We had an opportunity at any time to intervene," the general said.

Taylor testified in public before a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing attended by members of the armed services and atomic energy committees. He had told the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee Wednesday that the military chiefs feel the advantages of the pact to ban all except underground nuclear tests outweigh the disadvantages.

The preparedness group, which is holding separate closed sessions, heard Thursday an endorsement of the treaty by Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, army chief of staff. He said he had participated in the study and deliberations leading to the decision and "I subscribe fully" to Taylor's statement on the chiefs' views.

Made Public

Wheeler's statement which the subcommittee made public declared:

"While I do believe there are military disadvantages in the proposed treaty, with the safeguards enumerated in the Joint Chiefs of Staff statement I perceive no risks or disadvantages of such magnitude as to endanger the security of the United States."

Among the safeguards listed are keeping watch on Russia, maintaining readiness for resuming atmospheric tests if necessary, and conducting a dynamic program of underground tests to maintain progress permitted by the treaty.

Imponderables

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, told Taylor these safeguards appear to be "a multitude of imponderables and hopes." He said the chiefs should come up with "copper-riveted, guaranteed" safeguards for U.S. security and military posture. Taylor replied:

"All these safeguards are within the capacity of the American people. If we don't maintain them it's our own fault. But I have every confidence in the American people."

That testing is going ahead

was emphasized by the AEC's announcement that it had conducted a low-yield underground test Thursday at its Nevada test site. This was the second such detonation announced this week.

Support

Meanwhile, qualified support for the treaty came from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. He told a news conference in New York that unless there is "hard evidence that the Soviets are way ahead of us or the security of the United States is in danger, then I would certainly be on the favorable side."

Eisenhower said "no one has given me a copy of the whole bill" and before he makes a final conclusion "I want to make sure there is nothing I seriously object to."

He said the foreign relations committee had asked his views and he would send a statement later.

GEN. TAYLOR... no arm twisting.

Union Hits Tax Cut For Corporations

Unite House, Pa. (UPI)—The AFL-CIO high command Thursday denounced a $2.1 billion tax cut for corporations approved by the House Ways and Means Committee. It called the cut "indefensible."

The executive council of the big labor federation said corporations received a $2 billion tax cut last year. It called instead for tax reduction among middle and low income groups to boost consumer buying power to avert a business downturn.

The council's tax statement wound up a summer meeting at a union resort in the Pocono Mountains.

The council said the present economic indicators point toward a recession in 1964 unless decisive government measures are taken right away to stimulate sales, production and employment.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, declined to give any comments on the tax reductions on individual income tax rates approved by the House tax-writing committee.

"We must look at the whole bill to see if there's enough good in it, despite its obvious shortcomings, so we can support it," Meany told a news conference.

The council declared that "most lines of economic activities are heading toward a leveling off or weakening period." It said the government should spend more on public works projects and reverse policies that result in higher interest rates.

In effect, the statement was a mild criticism of the Kennedy administration's position on measures needed to stimulate the economy.

Meany noted that unemployment has been above 5% of the labor force for more than 5 years.

"We see disturbing indications that things might get worse in 1964," he said.

Employment Is Improved

Washington (AP)—Non-farm payroll employment in the United States showed continued improvement in July for the 6th consecutive month, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

If this increase, now totaling one million more persons employed than in January, could be sustained over a period of months, it undoubtedly would cut into unemployment, said Robert Stein, chief of the department's division of employment and unemployment analysis.

But, Stein noted at a news conference, the size of the labor force is increasing too, thus offsetting gains made in employment. Unemployment has remained about the same over the 6 month period, Stein said.

The number of workers on non-farm payrolls was 56.6 million in July, according to Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Despite the high employment, when seasonal adjustments are considered, there was an actual job reduction of 250,000 from June to July. This drop, however, would have been nearly 400,000 figured on the basis of previous June-to-July movements.

Youlou Forced To Quit

... CHANTING MOB SURROUNDS PALACE

Brazzaville, Congo Republic (AP)—President Fulbert Youlou, bowing to a chanting mob that surrounded the presidential palace, resigned Thursday on the Congo Republic's third anniversary of independence from French rule.

The Congolese army, an African force commanded by Lt. Col. Rene Jean of the French army, took over as a provisional government.

A spokesman said a new government will be selected and installed. No date was given. The spokesman indicated there will be no election.

New Regime

Demonstrators declared the new regime will be chosen from a list of 8 men approved by a committee of rioters.

The new government is certain to include a stronger voice from the left-leaning labor leaders who toppled Youlou's political machine in 3 tense days of rioting.

Emerging as a strongman among the rioters was labor leader Sime Matsika. Informed sources not those of the French or Youlou government—described him as a dedicated leftist trained in Peking.

During a demonstration by 10,000 Congolese before the palace, many carried placards reading: "Down With Youlou — Matsika Our New President."

The riots canceled plans for a gala independence celebration. A downtown square remained gaudily decorated. Red, green and yellow flags of the republic hung limp in the hot, airless day.

Two army captains named

Moutabakany and Moutsaka were placed for the time being in joint command of this young Equatorial African nation, a little neighbor of the more widely known former Belgian Congo.

Only Chief

Youlou, 46, is the only chief executive the republic has ever had.

A stocky little Roman Catholic priest forbidden to say mass since he entered politics, he wore the white cassock of a priest in two appearances before the demonstrators. First he went to the palace steps to appeal for retention of his regime. Abject surrender came in his second appearance.

Youlou, considered a rightist, likes a good time. He has made frequent trips to Paris. He has a roving eye for women.

Lavish Living

Widespread unemployment and lavish living by some of his 15 ministers were factors in his fall. Critics complained that many of the ministers had servant-staffed houses, drove expensive cars and kept mistresses.

Diplomatic sources expressed belief Youlou, is definitely finished as a political force.

The demonstrators made their opposition to him plain.

The stocky little one-time Roman Catholic parish priest, 46, made his announcement from the steps of the presidential palace before more than 10,000 Congolese demanding his resignation.

Locked Gates

Held off by locked gates and heavily armed African troops and police under French command, they had shouted: "Give us work. Give us bread."

Youlou, once called the Black Messiah, signed his resignation after hours of negotiations in the palace with labor leaders, who are his archenemies, and with representatives of the military. He embraced and thanked his aides and then went to the palace steps.

5th Fiery Suicide Brings Martial Law

Hue, Viet Nam (AP)—Wearing his ceremonial robes, a 71-year-old Buddhist monk burned himself to death in Hue's biggest pagoda Friday—the 5th such ritual suicide in two months in this southeast Asia country plagued by Communist guerrillas and religious unrest.

The 4 a.m. burning brought immediate martial law to Hue, which lies 400 miles north of Saigon and is the ancient capital of Viet Nam.

Body Held

The body of the monk was held by Buddhists inside.

The monk's self-immolation in the pagoda's courtyard was the 3rd fiery suicide this week. A 17-year-old novice monk killed himself Tuesday and a middle-aged nun took her life in Ninh Hoa Thursday in the campaign against the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem, a Roman Catholic.

Reliable informants said the nun, Dieu Hien, set fire to herself in the market place of Ninh Hoa, a coastal village 200 miles northeast of Saigon, the first woman fire suicide.

Focus Attention

The burnings are an effort to focus world attention on Buddhist demands for civil and religious rights they claim President Diem's government denies them.

The fiery suicides have taken place in 4 important centers of South Viet Nam—Saigon, this ancient capital of Hue, Ninh Hoa and Phan Thiet, 100 miles northeast of Saigon.

Communist Viet Cong guerrillas control the hinterland around these cities and they are reported exploiting anti-government sentiments stirred up by the suicides and stringent government action against Buddhist demonstrations.

Following the newest fire-death, all persons in Hue other than civil servants and troops were ordered by authorities to stay indoors to prevent any demonstrations.

The Buddhist crisis began in Hue May 8 when 11 persons died after troops forcibly put down a Buddhist demonstration.

The monk who died Friday was identified as Thich Tieu Dieu. His burning apparently was organized by the Buddhist hierarchy and was similar to the suicide of monk Quang Duc in Saigon—the first of the burnings.

Approved

Only those two suicides were reported approved by the Buddhist hierarchy. The other 3 were carried out without the sanction of the general Buddhist association of Viet Nam, which is spearheading the campaign to gain equal rights for Buddhism.

The burning Friday in Hue was apparently precipitated by the government's taking of the body of the novice monk who burned himself to death privately outside his pagoda in Hue.

Twenty-five Buddhists were wounded in that encounter when troops forcibly snatched the body from the funeral cortege winding into Hue. Buddhist leaders protested the government action of taking the body to a nearby town and burying it in the presence of the monk's uncle.

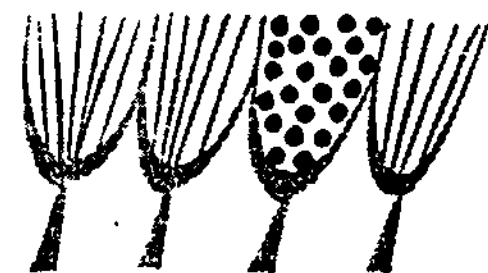

RR WRECK FATAL TO 3

Birmingham, England (AP)—The express to London smashed into the rear of a freight train 10 miles south of here Thursday, killing 3 persons and injuring several others.

Firemen with torches cut the engineer and his crew—all dead—out of their crushed cab. Several others were trapped in a crumpled pullman car. None of the passengers was reported hurt.

The train is one of British Railway's fast expresses, covering the 110-mile Birmingham-to-London run in an hour and 55 minutes. It usually is made up of a string of blue coaches with their own special diesel locomotive, but the regular rig was taken out of service Wednesday for repairs and a substitute was making the run Thursday.

CHIEFS OK'D TEST BAN

Washington (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor said Thursday the Joint Chiefs of Staff held long, hard discussions before deciding unanimously to support "in the final form" the limited nuclear test-ban treaty.

They came to that conclusion without "pressure" or "arm twisting" from their Pentagon superiors, Taylor, chairman of the top military command, declared in reply to senators' questions.

He said the joint chiefs were consulted in advance of negotiations leading to the treaty and had full access to all communications between Moscow and Washington during the negotiations in Russia.

Opportunity

"We had an opportunity at any time to intervene," the general said.

Taylor testified in public before a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing attended by members of the armed services and atomic energy committees. He had told the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee Wednesday that the military chiefs feel the advantages of the pact to ban all except underground nuclear tests outweigh the disadvantages.

The preparedness group, which is holding separate closed sessions, heard Thursday an endorsement of the treaty by Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, army chief of staff. He said he had participated in the study and deliberations leading to the decision and "I subscribe fully" to Taylor's statement on the chiefs' views.

Made Public

Wheeler's statement which the subcommittee made public declared:

"While I do believe there are military disadvantages in the proposed treaty, with the safeguards enumerated in the Joint Chiefs of Staff statement I perceive no risks or disadvantages of such magnitude as to endanger the security of the United States."

Among the safeguards listed are keeping watch on Russia, maintaining readiness for resuming atmospheric tests if necessary, and conducting a dynamic program of underground tests to maintain progress permitted by the treaty.

Imponderables

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, told Taylor these safeguards appear to be "a multitude of imponderables and hopes." He said the chiefs should come up with "copper-riveted, guaranteed" safeguards for U.S. security and military posture. Taylor replied:

"All these safeguards are within the capacity of the American people. If we don't maintain them it's our own fault. But I have every confidence in the American people."

That testing is going ahead

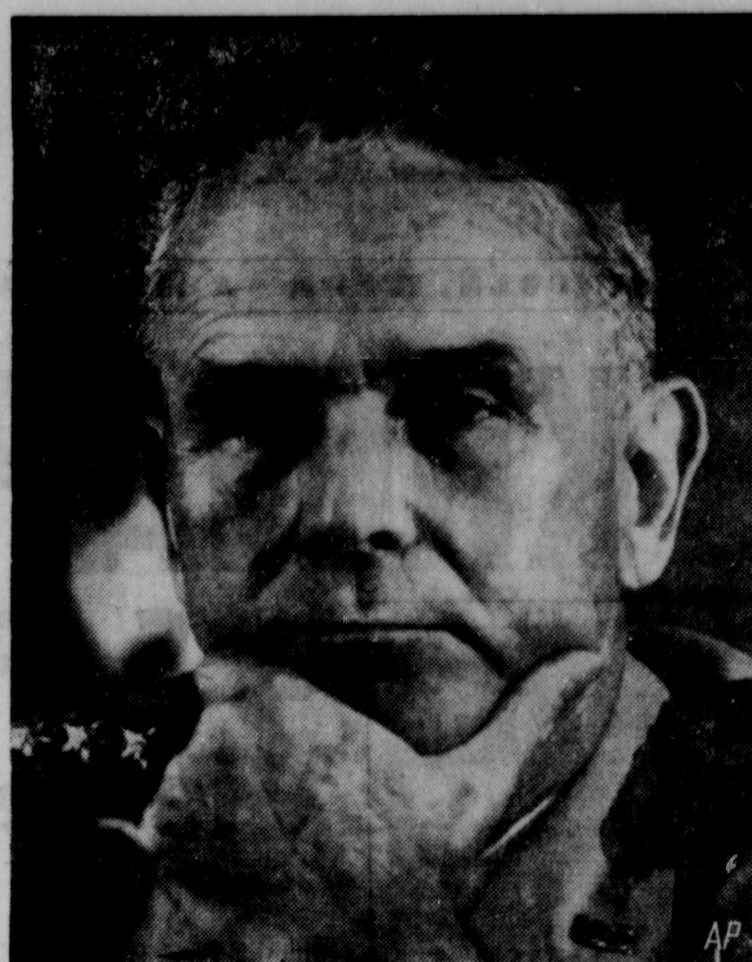

was emphasized by the AEC's announcement that it had conducted a low-yield underground test Thursday at its Nevada test site. This was the second such detonation announced this week.

Support

Meanwhile, qualified support for the treaty came from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. He told a news conference in New York that unless there is "hard evidence that the Soviets are way ahead of us or the security of the United States is in danger, then I would certainly be on the favorable side."

Eisenhower said "no one has given me a copy of the whole bill" and before he makes a final conclusion "I want to make sure there is nothing I seriously object to."

He said the foreign relations committee had asked his views and he would send a statement later.

GEN. TAYLOR... no arm twisting.

Union Hits Tax Cut For Corporations

Unity House, Pa. (UPI)—The AFL-CIO high command Thursday denounced a $2.1 billion tax cut for corporations approved by the House Ways and Means Committee. It called the cut "indefensible."

The executive council of the big labor federation said corporations received a $2 billion tax cut last year. It called instead for tax reduction among middle and low income groups to boost consumer buying power to avert a business downturn.

The council's tax statement wound up a summer meeting at a union resort in the Pocono Mountains.

The council said the present economic indicators point toward a recession in 1964 unless decisive government measures are taken right away to stimulate sales, production and employment.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, declined to give any comments on the tax reductions on individual income tax rates approved by the House tax-writing committee.

"We must look at the whole bill to see if there's enough good in it, despite its obvious shortcomings, so we can support it," Meany told a news conference.

The council declared that "most lines of economic activities are heading toward a leveling off or weakening period." It said the government should spend more on public works projects and reverse policies that result in higher interest rates.

In effect, the statement was a mild criticism of the Kennedy administration's position on measures needed to stimulate the economy.

Meany noted that unemployment has been above 5% of the labor force for more than 5 years.

"We see disturbing indications that things might get worse in 1964," he said.

Employment Is Improved

Washington (AP)—Non-farm payroll employment in the United States showed continued improvement in July for the 6th consecutive month, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

If this increase, now totaling one million more persons employed than in January, could be sustained over a period of months, it undoubtedly would cut into unemployment, said Robert Stein, chief of the department's division of employment and unemployment analysis.

But, Stein noted at a news conference, the size of the labor force is increasing too, thus offsetting gains made in employment. Unemployment has remained about the same over the 6 month period, Stein said.

The number of workers on non-farm payrolls was 56.6 million in July, according to Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Despite the high employment, when seasonal adjustments are considered, there was an actual job reduction of 260,000 from June to July. This drop, however, would have been nearly 400,000 figured on the basis of previous June-to-July movements.

Judges Key To Records

Says Rasmussen, Bill's Introducer

Fremont (U)—Sen. Ross Rasmussen, the principal introducer of the controversial juvenile court procedures bill LB567, said Thursday it was not his intent to tightly close all court records of juvenile cases.

Rasmussen said he was under the impression that records of the juvenile court like peace officers' records could be opened at the discretion of the juvenile court judge.

"It was certainly my intention that this should be left up to the judge," he said.

One paragraph of LB567 said "juvenile court legal records shall be deposited in the files and shall include the petition, summons, notice, certificates or receipts or mailings, orders, decrees, judgments and motions. The legal records maintained in the file shall be open at all times to the inspection of any minor to whom the records relate, and to his parents or guardian and their attorneys."

Rasmussen, who has been on vacation since questions were raised on LB567, was informed that some interpretations were so strict as to hold juvenile court records would be closed even to welfare workers and peace officers.

The bill was introduced to keep the mistakes of juveniles from becoming a blot on their records which would be held against them should they attempt to get into the armed forces or similar. Rasmussen said. The senator, a member of the Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth which sponsored the changes, said that if a youth is constantly violating the law "I see no reason to protect him."

He added that some children can be making a mistake at 14 while others at that age are quite mature and capable of actions of an adult and should be treated as adults. "I'm not going to put a wall around a hood," he declared.

4 Boys Hurt As Car Leaves Road, Slams Into Ditch

Four teen-agers were injured Thursday evening when the car in which they were riding went out of control, down a 10-foot embankment, slammed into a ditch and came to rest in a cornfield on East Adams.

The eastbound car left the blacktop at 84th and Adams and went out of control on gravel about 3 blocks east of there, State Safety Patrolmen said.

Injured were Mike Diekmann, 15, of 622 So. 26th, the driver; Allan Diekmann, 14, of the same address, his brother; Emmerick Balde, 16, 868 So. 28th, and Keith Miller, 16, of Joliet, Ill.

Mike Diekmann and Miller were thrown from the car.

The youths were taken to Bryan Memorial Hospital Thursday evening. Two, Allan Diekmann and Balde, were treated and released. Miller and Mike Diekmann were listed in good condition by hospital officials.

Cooler temperatures in north central and local thunderstorm activity in north eastern Nebraska Friday will be caused by a Pacific low front moving into the state. The cool high pressure area in eastern Illinois will have little effect on the state, but a weak front from north west Missouri to near Omaha is forming and should bring warm temperatures to Eastern Nebraska Friday.

Brewer Pleads Innocent To Murder

Council Bluffs, Iowa (UPI) — A controversy over the sanity of a Council Bluffs man, who has been in and out of mental institutions three times, will be taken up again this time with the man's life possibly hanging on the balance.

Ronald Brewer, 24, entered a plea of innocent and innocent by reason of insanity in Municipal Court here Thursday to a charge of first degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of another Bluffs man on Tuesday night.

A preliminary hearing was set for Aug. 21 by Judge Allan Ardell.

Brewer is charged in the slaying of Lawrence Ray, 22, manager of an apartment house where a girl lived whom Brewer had dated. Police said Ray was shot to death with a .30-06 rifle as he ran for his life.

Ray's wife, his brother Lloyd, and Lloyd's wife, told police they looked on as Brewer fatally shot Ray. The shooting occurred after Brewer reportedly ordered Ray to unlock the door to the apartment in which his girl friend lived.

Brewer, who said he was tired and sick of running, surrendered to Council Bluffs police Wednesday night. He told them he had been to Des Moines, had thought things out, and had stolen a car to return to surrender.

County Atty. Norman Davis said Brewer gave an oral confession after he turned himself in. He was brought to police headquarters by two of his sisters, Mrs. Betty Epperson and Mrs. Dorothy Burkholder, both of Council Bluffs.

Brewer said under questioning that his ribs were sore from a fall from a bridge. He did not explain how he hurt himself.

"I'm not as bad off as the fellow I shot," police quoted him as saying.

Claps, Cheers Greet JFK After Service

Washington (U)—Hundreds clapped, and a few cheered, for President John F. Kennedy as he left noon time services Thursday at St. Matthew's Cathedral.

The President, making his first public appearance in the capital since the birth and death of his son last week, nodded once or twice to the throng as he walked to his waiting car.

Kennedy had slipped quietly into the services—the Feast of the Assumption, a holy day of obligation for Roman Catholics. With him was Dave Powers, a personal friend and White House aide.

For a moment or two, the President and Powers had to stand at the back of the crowded church until an usher came to take them to their seats on a side aisle.

People stood in the aisles. Someone, possibly the President, must have asked a young girl standing beside Kennedy to sit down, for she eased past the President to sit beside Power.

By the time the 30-minute services were over, word had spread that the President was inside, and hundreds gathered on the cathedral steps and the sidewalk.

LAW REQUIRES CLEAR ROADS FOR DR. BANDA

Zomba, Nyasaland (U)—Parliament enacted Thursday a bill requiring motorists to clear the roads for the car of Dr. Hastings Banda, the U.S.-educated prime minister of this new African nation.

All oncoming traffic must stop when his car appears. Motorists going the same way are forbidden to pass him.

Banda is a 58-year-old Negro physician and intellectual, long exiled, who as a youth attended high school in Wilberforce, Ohio, the University of Chicago and Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn.

... At Lutheran Meet

Lincoln Star Special
Seward — The church must lose her life in order to find it," Dr. John Herrmann of St. Louis, stewardship counselor of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, declared here.

Speaking at the annual convention of the Southern Nebraska District of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, Dr. Herrmann said the church "must see her mission as one of building and strengthening herself for the greater task of out-reach into a world which does not know Christ."

"About 70 million of our fellow Americans are unchurched and of the 3 billion people in the world 2 1/2 billion are heathen. Missionary gains have not begun to keep up with the population explosion."

The convention closed Thursday with the following circuit counselors named to oversee area churches: The Rev. George Weinrich, Arapahoe; Eric Prange, Tobias; Robert Legee, Superior; Harvey Michel, Falls City; Lester Boehm, St. Libory; Martin Hoffmann, Blue Hill; E. W. Brewer, Ravenna; Edgar P. Schmidt, Lincoln; A. F. Otto, Big Springs; Clarence Boye, Sidney; Earl Finningsmoie, Hampton; and Edward Schmidt, Laramie, Wyo.

Meanwhile, the Rev. Victor Jordening, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church at Lexington, was elected to the newly formed post of 3rd vice president of the southern district.

The Rev. Philip Fry of Beatrice was named second vice president. He has served as pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Beatrice for the past 4 years.

Church Camp Eyed
Earlier the convention delegates recommended that the board of directors of the two Nebraska districts, Northern and Southern, appoint a central planning committee to study available sites and approximate costs of a church camp. If the reports are favorable the directors are empowered to jointly purchase, develop and operate a district camp.

Reporting to delegates, the Rev. Arthur C. Nitz, 4th vice president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, said, "Both continued growth and physical problems face our church in the future. The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod has grown from 12 congregations in 1847 to more than 5,000 today. Projections show that we can expect a membership growth from our present 2.5 million to 5 million by 1985, and Sunday school enrollment will grow by almost 400,000 in the next 10 years."

"This year we have a shortage of 250 teachers in our schools and more than 170 pastors in our parishes."

The Rev. Rueben J. Schmidt of St. Louis, Mo., assistant secretary for missions of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, declared "Scientific and church leaders are faulting the church for its lack of influence on local and world society. The church speaks with much less authority than in former times, and some even speak of the present era as the decline of the church."

Holdrege (U)—Three employees of the Holdrege Co-op Feed Mill suffered first and second degree burns in an explosion at the plant Thursday.

Keith Weaver, Harold C. Linesmith and Carl A. Erickson were in satisfactory condition in a hospital with burns of the face, arms and body.

No immediate reason was discovered for the blast which blew out all the windows and set fire to sacks on the main floor. The blaze was quickly extinguished. There was no estimate of damage.

The mill is a new concrete and steel structure which was put into operation early this year.

Japanese Land Reforms

(Editor William O. Dobler is on vacation. Today's column is by UPI writer Ted Shimizu.)

By TED SHIMIZU

TOKYO — Gen. Douglas MacArthur's sweeping land reform program, perhaps the most dramatic and widely acclaimed reform of the postwar era in Japan, is now on the verge of a new deal for ex-landlords. But the basic reform will remain. It has long since become part of the fabric of Japanese society. The conservative government's Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda, under strong pressure from former landlords who were stripped of their vast land holdings shortly after the end of World War II, is slowly but determinedly taking a second look at the program that was launched some 17 years ago.

The diet (parliament) already has approved a government request for a budget amounting to 198 million yen ($525,000) to conduct the study. The purpose of the project is to find out whether a large number of former landlords should be given help. Already the major opposition Socialist party has made it known that it is against any plan to give more money to former landlords. The sweeping land reform program was launched in 1946 under the occupation decree which stated that it was an attempt to "democratize" Japan's rural life and to "relieve farmers of the burden of an oppressive landlord system, which fostered anti-democratic social relations and counteracted efforts to increase agricultural production."

With the "democratization" of Japanese village life, about 2.5 million landlords gave up some five million acres of paddy. A total of 4,200,000 tenants became land-owners overnight. Each one of them was allowed to purchase up to five acres of paddy at the cost of 760 yen ($2.10) per square yard. In turn, each landlord was forced to give up his land holding in return for 890 yen ($2.47) per square yard.

The land reform decree was naturally on the side of tenants, for the occupation authorities had instructed the Japanese government to allow tenants to pay the price for their newly obtained lands in installments if they could not make lump sum payments. Hard hit were so-called absentee landlords who were forced to withdraw ownership of their land holdings. Of about 2.5 million landlords, non-farming land-owners accounted for a little over a million. Others who were known as owner-farmers were permitted to retain 2.6 acres in addition to the paddy they themselves had engaged in planting rice.

The land reform was carried out so successfully that Japan's agricultural economy, mainly rice production, increased gradually until 1962 when rice yields amounted to 96 bushels, per acre. In fact, the record 1962 rice crop was the eighth consecutive bumper harvest in the country.

Effective organization of so-called agricultural cooperation throughout the country also helped raise rice production and the living standards of farmers, who now either own or jointly operate small tractors and other electrical equipment.

Today only 10 per cent of the total 15 million acres under cultivation is tenant-farmed as compared with 45 per cent before the land reform was carried out.

The land reform program had its drawbacks. The occupation authorities had stripped landlords of their paddy only and let those who had possessed forests retain them. Therefore, those people could live off selling timber and charcoal after the loss of their paddy. But those who did not have forests — and there were many — had suddenly become poor.

Japan's rapid recovery from the war and remarkable industrial progress have cut deeply into the countryside. There are new factories and new houses in the formerly quiet country. Some of them were built on paddy that were sold by farmers who attained them under the land reform program. There were reports that some of these farmers sold their paddy for huge sums of money — usually about 36,000 yen ($100) per square yard. Former landlords resented all this. They felt they could have benefited if they had not been forced to give up their land holdings. They formed a powerful lobby to ask the ruling Liberal Democratic party to do something on their behalf.

The party called on the government to allocate a sum of 294 billion yen ($819 million) as compensation for former land-owners. But a decision may not be forthcoming for some time. One official said that the study of the land reform program may take a year or more before any decision can be reached.

DREW PEARSON Cold War Tension Old Hat In Turkey

ISTANBUL — If you want to see what cold war tensions mean and how one false move could plunge the world into war, take a look at the intricate defense system the United States has built up with its allies, Turkey and Greece, in this southern wing of NATO.

This is an area, not 90 miles from communist territory as Cuba is from the United States, but only a few feet away. Along Greek and Turkish borders to the West, communist Bulgaria is separated by only a few strands of rusty barbed wire. Between Turkey and Soviet Armenia to the east, there is more rusty barbed wire.

To this crucial territory a squadron of fighter bombers flies non-stop from Langley Field, Virginia, every ninety days. The pilots don't know in advance who is going to make the flight. They are picked by surprise from crews already on the alert. They fuel three times in the air—over Bermuda, the Azores, and Spain—and then take up their vigil not far from the Soviet-Bulgarian borders. They are equipped with atomic weapons, and have pre-arranged targets deep inside Russia. For four hours every day they sit in their cockpits, always ready to take off. When one pilot has sat for four hours, another takes his place. But night and day, these fighter bombers are on the alert.

Simultaneously, Greek and Turkish planes are also on the alert. They are not equipped with nuclear weapons but can be in a few minutes.

The good people of Shelton know how to make their appreciation known when they need rain and it does rain. At least three benchwarmers there offered a graphic illustration. Discussing the state of affairs generally and the need for moisture specifically, they were still perched on what the Clipper calls "the loafers' bench" when the skies burst open. To prove they were happy with what can mean many more pennies from heaven, they didn't budge a soggy inch but sat it out right through the entire downpour.

The Trenton Register was well pleased and not a little amused with the "bringing of coals to Newcastle," as far as it was concerned. With Colorado's reputation as a fishing state and "everyone breaking his neck to try the streams there," the Register told of a group of Colorado natives from Littleton and Denver who made a special trip by air to Trenton and from there for a good day's fishing at Swanton Lake. And "they went home happy" with their catch.

Mrs. Roy Ahndt, columnist for the Scribner Rustler, tells of a certain BIG fish in Pebble Creek that a local angler has his initials on. And she says there are several BIG ones in the Elkhorn which others, including her husband, have their initials on.

It's funny, she muses. You can fish and fish and catch all kinds—big ones, little ones, fat ones, skinny ones. But it's always that BIG one that gets away.

"That is what makes fishing fun. If we always caught every fish we hooked, we wouldn't have any excuse to go back. It's better this way, right?"

The Hooper Sentinel recently participated in Trail Days there and one of the theatrical offerings called "Saga of the Prairie" is still producing its share of chuckles. When the "beautiful wife" was to be burned at the stake, the "Indians" couldn't get the fire started with new-fangled matches, let alone using flint or rubbing two sticks together. So a "hardy pioneer" lying "scalped" nearby dug into his pants pocket and furnished the "Indians" with more fire power. She recognized the need for a swimming pool, and also what she termed the "sheer folly" of ever bringing it to a vote. She told of the uphill climb a housing project was having, discussed the need for unified effort if small manufacturing concerns are to be attracted.

Maybe after she has reclined in the Arizona sun for awhile, she'll feel better, she said, and concluded with: "See you all in a month — if there is a town to come back to."

Mob Rule

Broken Bow, Neb.
Recently a young leader in one of the farm organizations resigned his position with the comment that the reason was that the State Legislature passed some anti-farm legislation. Now, I cannot call this anti-farm legislation. The only reason that it could be called that is that it doesn't go far enough.

I am unalterably opposed to mob rule, whether it be farmers, labor, NAACP or what have you. That is the gangster's way of doing things. We are still supposed to be a democracy and should settle all our grievances by the due process of the law, slow as it may be.

The trouble with mob rule is that some hotheads always get something started that is hard to stop. If everyone would make an honest attempt at practicing the Golden Rule, there would be no differences to settle. But since they don't, we have to have laws to take care of our differences.

And I firmly believe it is the duty of the legislatures of each and every state to pass an anti-picketing law. And if they will not do it, I'm in favor of Congress passing such a law. And I mean that to apply to everyone, whether it be labor, farmers, NAACP or any other organization. Some of the recent events, not only in the South but in our own state, make this mandatory.

I would also be in favor of going a step further and passing some kind of anti-demonstration laws. By this I mean on public property such as streets, highways, etc. If anyone wants to put on a demonstration, let him rent a hall or ball park. That way, anyone who wants to take part or listen to what is said can go in and do so. But let's not subject people who don't want to listen to their stuff to having to put up with it. As far as I'm concerned, that could include street corner political speeches and parades for political or any purposes except for entertainment.

It may be noticed that free-loaded off the taxpayer

There are many duplications such as the seed testing laboratory. It is a fact that the ag college has basically the same thing, and the ag college is far more accessible to those wanting seed tested than the capitol building.

Elimination of this duplication could result in the saving of tax dollars and bring revenue to the ag college which it could use.

The public can wonder about how much duplication there is in our state government and how much of it is on the cuff of the taxpayer and could be eliminated. I am sure we have plenty of office space in the capitol building if a survey were made and unnecessary offices done away with.

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed. Reed

"Seems like only yesterday that we had to PAY to get a sitter for daughter."

Let's Not Kid Ourselves

The administration's case for a tax cut cleared a formidable barrier this week when it got the green light from the House Ways and Means Committee.

The measure does not meet the details of the administration's request, but it acquiesces in principle. In this instance the principle is more significant than the details.

The average individual can expect a 20 per cent cut in taxes. Corporations also will find the tax demand lighter. Much of the relief will take effect January 1, 1964; the rest in 1965 if the measure becomes law.

The tax cut offers an experiment in stimulating the national economy on the assumption that the money saved by taxpayers will be diverted into that much increase in consumer expenditures. It will probably do this and in doing so it should attack the problem of chronic unemployment. If it increases the gross national product and gross national consumption it can be assumed that some return in new taxes will benefit federal revenues.

But it would be wistful to believe that new taxes will cover federal deficits and naive to believe that drastic cuts in the federal budget will ensue. What will take place is national consent for deficit financing — a recognition of fact which has been operative for a good many years.

It has been wholesome to press for balanced budgets for the reason that a moral restraint has been erected against unbridled spending. But it is also a fact that budget balancing has been a trick done with mirrors. A student of federal financing has no difficulty recalling that as far back as the days of Herbert Hoover the feat of budget balancing was achieved by dividing the budget into two parts, the extraordinary budget and the ordinary budget. The latter was balanced but not the former.

Inquiry has revealed a Negro applicant along with 21 white applicants was deemed unqualified for duties as a member of the Nebraska State Safety Patrol. In short he raised here in the light of the Legislature's flunked the examination.

Some will raise the question, Is Nebraska paying lip service to desegregation? This is always a fair question, for nationally there is a great deal of tacit evidence of subtle discrimination. It can be raised here in the light of the Legislature's continuing reluctance to pass fair employment measures of a kind to please those who attribute their problems to discrimination.

But in this instance there is not enough of a pattern to reveal anything decisive. Since patrol qualifications are unusually demanding and most applicants are rejected, the racial criterion would be a minor consideration.

The more positive aspect is that there has ceased to be racial restraint in making application, and that is a first step toward integration. In due time continued application by non-whites will produce one qualified for service beyond a peradventure of a doubt. If rejection continues then an assumption of discrimination takes on weight. Meantime, it would be unjustifiable for the patrol to cast away its standards to prove an incidental point.

Most Nebraskans would rejoice over a definite act which would dispel the subtle indictment of unfair play. But they are aware that the grant of opportunity is to a degree negative. Realization requires positive action on the part of those who feel discrimination. One is pleased to learn that non-whites are making that effort and can hope that decisive vindication is not far off.

Each one of them was allowed to purchase up to five acres of paddies at the cost of 760 yen ($2.10) per square yard. In turn, each landlord was forced to give up his land holding in return for 890 yen ($2.47) per square yard.

The land reform decree was naturally on the side of tenants, for the occupation authorities had instructed the Japanese government to allow tenants to pay the price for their newly obtained lands in installments if they could not make lump sum payments.

Hard hit were so-called absentee landlords who were forced to withdraw ownership of their land holdings. Of about 2.5 million landlords, non-farming land-owners accounted for a little over a million. Others who were known as owner-farmers were permitted to retain 2.6 acres in addition to the paddies they themselves had engaged in planting rice.

The land reform was carried out so successfully that Japan's agricultural economy, mainly rice production, increased gradually until 1962 when rice yields amounted to 96 bushels, per acre. In fact, the record 1962 rice crop was the eighth consecutive bumper harvest in the country.

Effective organization of so-called agricultural cooperation throughout the country also helped raise rice production and the living standards of farmers, who now either own or jointly operate small tractors and other electrical equipment.

Today only 10 per cent of the total 15 million acres under cultivation is tenanted as compared with 45 per cent before the land reform was carried out.

The land reform program had its drawbacks. The occupation authorities had stripped landlords of their paddies only and let those who had possessed forests retain them. Therefore, those people could live off selling timber and charcoal after the loss of their paddies. But those who did not have forests — and there were many — had suddenly become poor.

Japan's rapid recovery from the war and remarkable industrial progress have cut deeply into the countryside. There are new factories and new houses in the formerly quiet country. Some of them were built on paddies that were sold by farmers who attained them under the land reform program. There were reports that some of these farmers sold their paddies for huge sums of money — usually about 36,000 yen ($100) per square yard. Former landlords resented all this. They felt they could have benefited if they had not been forced to give up their land holdings. They formed a powerful lobby to ask the ruling Liberal Democratic party to do something on their behalf.

The party called on the government to allocate a sum of 294 billion yen ($819 million) as compensation for former land-owners. But a decision may not be forthcoming for some time. One official said that the study of the land reform program may take a year or more before any decision can be reached.

Cold War Tension Old Hat In Turkey

ISTANBUL — If you want to see what cold war tensions mean and how one false move could plunge the world into war, take a look at the intricate defense system the United States has built up with its allies, Turkey and Greece, in this southern wing of NATO.

This is an area, not 90 miles from communist territory as Cuba is from the United States, but only a few feet away. Along Greek and Turkish borders to the West, communist Bulgaria is separated by only a few strands of rusty barbed wire. Between Turkey and Soviet Armenia to the east, there is more rusty barbed wire.

To this crucial territory a squadron of fighter bombers flies non-stop from Langley Field, Virginia, every ninety days. The pilots don't know in advance who is going to make the flight. They are picked by surprise from crews already on the alert. They fuel three times in the air—over Bermuda, the Azores, and Spain—and then take up their vigil not far from the Soviet-Bulgarian borders. They are equipped with atomic weapons, and have pre-arranged targets deep inside Russia. For four hours every day they sit in their cockpits, always ready to take off. When one pilot has sat for four hours, another takes his place. But night and day, these fighter bombers are on the alert.

Simultaneously, Greek and Turkish planes are also on the alert. They are not equipped with nuclear weapons but can be in a few minutes.

"President Kennedy is hipped on preventing any accidental war," explained one NATO official in a matter of fact way.

It requires two men to install the bombs in the planes, and each must receive separate coded messages. A third officer carries the nuclear weapons to the planes.

There was a time when nuclear weapons were so complicated that it took some time to put them together and there was less likelihood that some madman could touch off war. But today weapons have become so refined and simple that three men, acting on three separate orders, have the separate responsibility for nuclear war.

This ever-ready-for-war status may seem alarming to civilians, but this part of the world has been living on the edge of possible war so long that it has become blasé. Furthermore, Near East leaders have considered these tensions an asset; for the cold war makes it easier to get foreign aid dollars from the U.S. Congress.

Thus when I came to Turkey shortly after Eisenhower's Camp David talks with Khrushchev which eased the cold war, Turkish officials were concerned over what would happen to their foreign aid funds.

But this week when I asked Premier Ismet Inonu what he thought of the test ban treaty, he replied: "I am happy that there is better understanding between the United States and Russia. The treaty is hopeful and useful."

Rocky-Goldwater In Fight To A Finish

WASHINGTON —The political trade has dropped all its doubts that a heated Rockefeller-Goldwater contest for the Republican nomination for president will actually take place.

The question still being asked is whether that contest will so pre-empt the stage that it will be impossible for party managers to draw a compromise candidate from the wings who can conciliate the factions and make a strong bid for election.

Today the dialogue between the governor and the senator is crisp. The governor has attacked the far-right admirers of the senator and demanded that the senator repudiate them. The senator is reaching for party leadership on the nuclear test-ban issue in terms which make the "yes, but" support of the new treaty by the governor seem insipid.

According to present plans, this sparring will come to a head in the New Hampshire primary next spring. The position there cannot be judged from Washington.

New Hampshire Democrats give Goldwater the edge, but that is what they hope. The Republicans, whose feuding last year put a Democrat in the statehouse and another in the United States Senate, are still at it.

Last week former Gov. Wesley Powell filed a $1-million libel suit against King-maker-Publisher William Loeb and his powerful daily, the Manchester Union Leader. Powell complained of being likened to Hitler's storm troopers. Loeb replied that nobody was accusing "Wes" of being in any way like Hitler's nazis."

In the overstatement of the year, Loeb added, "as everyone knows, this newspaper prints all sides of a question."

Goldwater will go into New Hampshire with a ready-mixed cadre of supporters, including the once considerable organization of the late Sen. Styles Bridges. Rockefeller, who attended Dartmouth college there, believes he can put together a representative committee but admits to being the underdog.

The governor is confident that he can recoup any primary setbacks with a big win in California in June. Of course, if he lost that one, too, he would be in deep trouble. It would equally tarnish the Goldwater bid to lose that specimen of the industrial states so rich in electoral votes.

Democrats meeting last week end in Sacramento made no news worth exporting from California and were in fact much more interested in what candidate the Republicans would field against their incumbent, Sen. Clair Engle, next year. Republican observers were unable to oblige with an attractive selection, much less a well-known figure of prestige.

THE NEIGHBORS SAY

Sittin' And Singin' In The Rain

By MONA B. PARKER

The good people of Shelton know how to make their appreciation known when they need rain and it does rain. At least three benchwarmers there offered a graphic illustration. Discussing the state of affairs generally and the need for moisture specifically, they were still perched on what the Clipper calls "the loafers' bench" when the skies burst open. To prove they were happy with what can mean many more pennies from heaven, they didn't budge a soggy inch but sat it out right through the entire downpour.

The Trenton Register was well pleased and not a little amused with the "bringing of coals to Newcastle," as far as it was concerned. With Colorado's reputation as a fishing state and "everyone breaking his neck to try the streams there," the Register told of a group of Colorado natives from Littleton and Denver who made a special trip by air to Trenton and from there for a good day's fishing at Swan Lake. And "they went home happy" with their catch.

Mrs. Roy Ahndt, columnist for the Scribner Rustler, tells of a certain BIG fish in Pebble Creek that a local angler has his initials on. And she says there are several BIG ones in the Elk River which others, including her husband, have their initials on.

It's funny, she muses. You can fish and catch all kinds—big ones, little ones, fat ones, skinny ones. But it's always that BIG one that gets away.

"That is what makes fishing fun. If we always caught every fish we hooked, we wouldn't have any excuse to go back. It's better this way, right?"

Lady Editor Gladys Lind-

The Hooper Sentinel recently participated in Trail Days there and one of the theatrical offerings called "Saga of the Prairie" is still producing its share of chuckles. When the "beautiful wife" was to be burned at the stake, the "Indians" couldn't get the fire started with new-fangled matches, let alone using flint or rubbing two sticks together. So a "hardy pioneer" lying "scalped" nearby dug into his pants pocket and furnished the "Indians" with more fire power. Approving comment was that there is nothing quite like an amateur performance for pure entertainment.

strom set forth in rather plain language some of the things that could be improved upon there in Gresham — and then she left town on vacation.

She took readers to task for neglecting to keep their subscriptions paid up, and explained further that if it were not for a few loyal advertisers, there wouldn't be any paper. She recognized the need for a swimming pool, and also what she termed the "sheer folly" of ever bringing it to a vote. She told of the uphill climb a housing project was having, discussed the need for unified effort if small manufacturing concerns are to be attracted.

Maybe after she has reclined in the Arizona sun for awhile, she'll feel better, she said, and concluded with: "See you all in a month — if there is a town to come back to."

After noting national trends in the mythical realm of such intangibles as "status symbols," the Bertrand Herald announces that there is a code of similar sorts existing there.

During the winter months, "if you don't have a bowling score to talk about, you are pretty much out of the coffee-counter conversation." This diminishes during the summer, of course, but week-ends at the lake replace it. Next best thing to having a cabin to talk about is a boat and the ability to water ski.

And motor vehicles have their place. Once it was the smart thing to own a station wagon. The current "in," according to the Herald, is to own a second car, and the second car must be an older model, priced on used car lots anywhere from $95 to $295. There is one restriction here, by social boundaries.

"Your regular automobile must be a fairly recent model or you lose the effect of that second one."

ARTHUR BURKHOLDER

Broken Bow, Neb.

Recently a young leader in one of the farm organizations resigned his position with the comment that the reason was that the State Legislature passed some anti-farm legislation. Now, I cannot call this anti-farm legislation. The only reason that it could be called that is that it doesn't go far enough.

I am unalterably opposed to mob rule, whether it be farmers, labor, NAACP or what have you. That is the gangster's way of doing things. We are still supposed to be a democracy and should settle all our grievances by the due process of the law, slow as it may be.

The trouble with mob rule is that some hotheads always get something started that is hard to stop. If everyone would make an honest attempt at practicing the Golden Rule, there would be no differences to settle. But since they don't, we have to have laws to take care of our differences.

And I firmly believe it is the duty of the legislatures of each and every state to pass an anti-picketing law. And if they will not do it, I'm in favor of Congress passing such a law. And I mean that to apply to everyone, whether it be labor, farmers, NAACP or any other organization. Some of the recent events, not only in the South but in our own state, make this mandatory.

I would also be in favor of going a step further and passing some kind of anti-demonstration laws. By this I mean on public property such as streets, highways, etc. If anyone wants to put on a demonstration, let him rent a hall or ball park. That way, anyone who wants to take part or listen to what is said can go in and do so. But let's not subject people who don't want to listen

Quick Waste Water Plant Applications Urged

Nebraska communities which want to start construction on waste water treatment facilities in 1964 have been urged to submit applications for federal funds as soon as possible to the State Department of Health.

T. A. Filipi, director of the department's division of environmental health and secretary of the Nebraska Water Pollution Control Council, Thursday said that Nebraska has been allocated $1,112,263 in federal aid for local sewerage treatment construction.

The health department has listed 26 communities it expects to start work during the 1964 fiscal year.

They are Columbus, Gering, Terrytown, Gothenburg, Auburn, Papillion, North Platte, Neligh, O'Neill, Peru, Hurd, Burwell, Ashland, Atkinson, Bayard, West Point, Mitchell, Bloomfield, Beemer, Ponca, Cedar Rapids, Broadwater and Valentine.

Have Until June 30

The communities have until next June 30 to file applications but Filipi is anxious for them to get their plans ready as soon as possible to expedite the funneling of federal funds for the projects.

The maximum federal aid allowable for such projects is 30% of the over-all cost. The towns pay the rest.

Filipi figures the largest single project next year will be a $1.1 million plant in Fremont. He said Fremont has already asked him for an application form.

The Fremont project can only be allocated $250,000 unless there is some money left over after all the other projects are taken care of. In that case, Fremont would get the full 30%, or a little over $300,000.

Filipi expressed satisfaction at the rate of sewerage control plant construction in Nebraska. "We are ahead of (the) schedule" set up by the Water Pollution Control Council in 1956, he said.

Long-range plans call for future construction in the following towns:

Fiscal year 1965—Louisville, Loup City, Lyons, Oakland, Oakwood, St. Paul, Scribner, Stanton, Waverly, Silver Creek, Howells, Laurel, Leigh, Lindsay, Newman Grove and Rushville.

Fiscal year 1966—Minutemen, Wakefield, Pilger, Spencer, Lyman, Weston, Wakefield, Macy, Henry, Thedford, Bruce, Arnold, Clarkson, Crawford, Ertson, Dodge, Gordon, Hay Springs, Seward, Dakota City and Beaver Crossing.

3 Consolidation Plans Approved

Three petition school consolidation proposals were approved by the State School District Reorganization Committee this week.

Two similar proposals were given qualified approval while the advisory committee failed to approve another.

Those approved:

Boyd County—Dissolve school district 23 and attach the area to district 24 (Lynch).

Boyd County—Dissolve school district 2 and attach it to district 5 (Butte).

Sherman County—Dissolve school district 54 and attach the area to district 1 (Loup City) and district 13 (Litchfield).

These give qualified approval:

Livestock Holding Action 'Up To NFO's Members'

Corning, Iowa (AP) — The board of directors of the National Farmers Organization (NFO) may call for a holding action on livestock if members appear to favor such action, NFO President, Oren Lee Staley of Rea, Mo., said here Thursday.

Staley said, however, that a holding action is not planned at this time.

"The board of directors is on call to meet in 24 hours whenever pressure from individual areas indicates most members want a holding action," Staley said. "If a holding action is called it will be without much notice."

Placards announcing a holding action to start Monday were seen in Kansas City, Waterloo and southern Minnesota Thursday but Staley said "those are the result of individual members who are pressing very hard for a holding action."

In the fall of 1962 NFO members held sheep, cattle and hogs off the market in an attempt to boost prices paid to farmers. There was little increase in prices during the action.

"If we do have a holding action on livestock," Staley said, "dairy products also will be held off the market in milk-producing areas such as Wisconsin."

'Most State Sewage Plants Lousy'

The director of the State Health Department's division of environmental health Thursday said the operation of most sewerage treatment plants in Nebraska is lousy.

"In the main, the operation and maintenance of most treatment plants is lousy," T. A. Filipi said. He is also secretary of the Nebraska Water Pollution Control Council.

Filipi said the way most of them are being run, they will deteriorate in value and usefulness long before their time. In addition, he pointed out, poorly operated treatment plants don't do the job for which they were intended.

Filipi emphasized there are a few exceptions, notably pollution control plants at Nebraska City, Grand Island and Fairbury. All these are efficient, he said.

But in the vast majority of cases, "if the mayor and the city council saw what was going on, there would be an improvement in operation," he asserted.

Filipi said the state holds classes to teach proper maintenance of sewerage facilities,

Quick Waste Water Plant Applications Urged

Nebraska communities which want to start construction on waste water treatment facilities in 1964 have been urged to submit applications for federal funds as soon as possible to the State Department of Health.

T. A. Filipi, director of the department's division of environmental health and secretary of the Nebraska Water Pollution Control Council, Thursday said that Nebraska has been allocated $1,112,265 in federal aid for local sewerage treatment construction.

The health department has listed 26 communities it expects to start work during the 1964 fiscal year.

They are Columbus, Gering, Terrytown, Gothenburg, Auburn, Wahoo, Falls City, Fremont, Papillion, North Platte, Neligh, O'Neill, Peru, Humboldt, Burwell, Ashland, Atkinson, Bayard, West Point, Mitchell, Bloomfield, Beemer, Ponca, Cedar Rapids, Broadwater and Valentine.

Have Until June 30

The communities have until next June 30 to file applications but Filipi is anxious for them to get their plans ready as soon as possible to expedite the funneling of federal funds for the projects.

The maximum federal aid allowable for such projects is 30% of the over-all cost. The towns pay the rest.

Filipi figures the largest single project next year will be a $1.1 million plant in Fremont. He said Fremont has already asked him for an application form.

The Fremont project can only be allocated $250,000 unless there is some money left over after all the other projects are taken care of. In that case, Fremont would get the full 30%, or a little over $300,000.

Filipi expressed satisfaction at the rate of sewerage control plant construction in Nebraska. "We are ahead of (the) schedule" set up by the Water Pollution Control Council in 1956, he said.

Long-range plans call for future construction in the following towns:

Fiscal year 1965—Louisville, Loup City, Lyons, Oakland, Oshkosh, St. Paul, Scribner, Stanton, Waverly, Silver Creek, Howells, Laurel, Leigh, Lindsay, Newman Grove and Rushville.

Fiscal year 1966—Minatare, Wakefield, Pilger, Spencer, Lyman, Weston, Winslow, Macy, Henry, Theoford, Brule, Arnold, Clarkson, Crawford, Crofton, Dodge, Gordon, Hay Springs, Snyder, Dakota City and Beaver Crossing.

But in the vast majority of cases, "if the mayor and the city council saw what was going on, there would be an improvement in operation," he asserted.

Filipi said the state holds classes to teach proper maintenance of sewerage facilities, but that hardly anyone shows up.

He said the answer is education and possibly a rating system.

Filipi said that sometime back, a list of 25 best and 25 worst run pools in the state was published and right after that there was a general improvement in swimming pool sanitation and operation.

Slimming Canapes

For summer entertaining, it's best to prepare a few light appetizers along with the heavier dunks-with-crackers. Friends who want to be sure that their new bathing suits fit all season will appreciate your thoughtfulness. Shrimp is ideal for summer-alim nibbling. Most folks have their own special hot-tomato sauce, or a mustard sauce to serve with cooked shrimp on cocktail picks. But there are many other ways to tempt your guests with shrimp appetizers.

To cook shrimp, shell and de-vein fresh or frozen shrimp, either before or after boiling. Add shrimp to boiling water, enough to cover. Use 1 teaspoon pickling spices to each quart water. Simmer, covered 3 to 5 minutes. Drain and chill.

SHRIMP CANAPES

Catchup
Mayonnaise
Melba toast rounds
Cooked shrimp, cut in halves lengthwise
Watercress sprigs
Combine equal amounts of catchup and mayonnaise; blend. Spread very small amount on toast rounds. Top each with shrimp half and sprig of watercress.

SHRIMP-STUFFED CELERY

1 bunch celery
1 cup finely chopped cooked shrimp
2-3 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon catchup
2 teaspoons fresh lime or lemon juice
1 teaspoon celery salt
Paprika

Cut celery into 3-inch pieces. Combine shrimp, mayonnaise, catchup, lime juice, and celery salt; mix well. Fill celery pieces with shrimp mixture. Sprinkle with paprika. Chill thoroughly. Makes about 18.

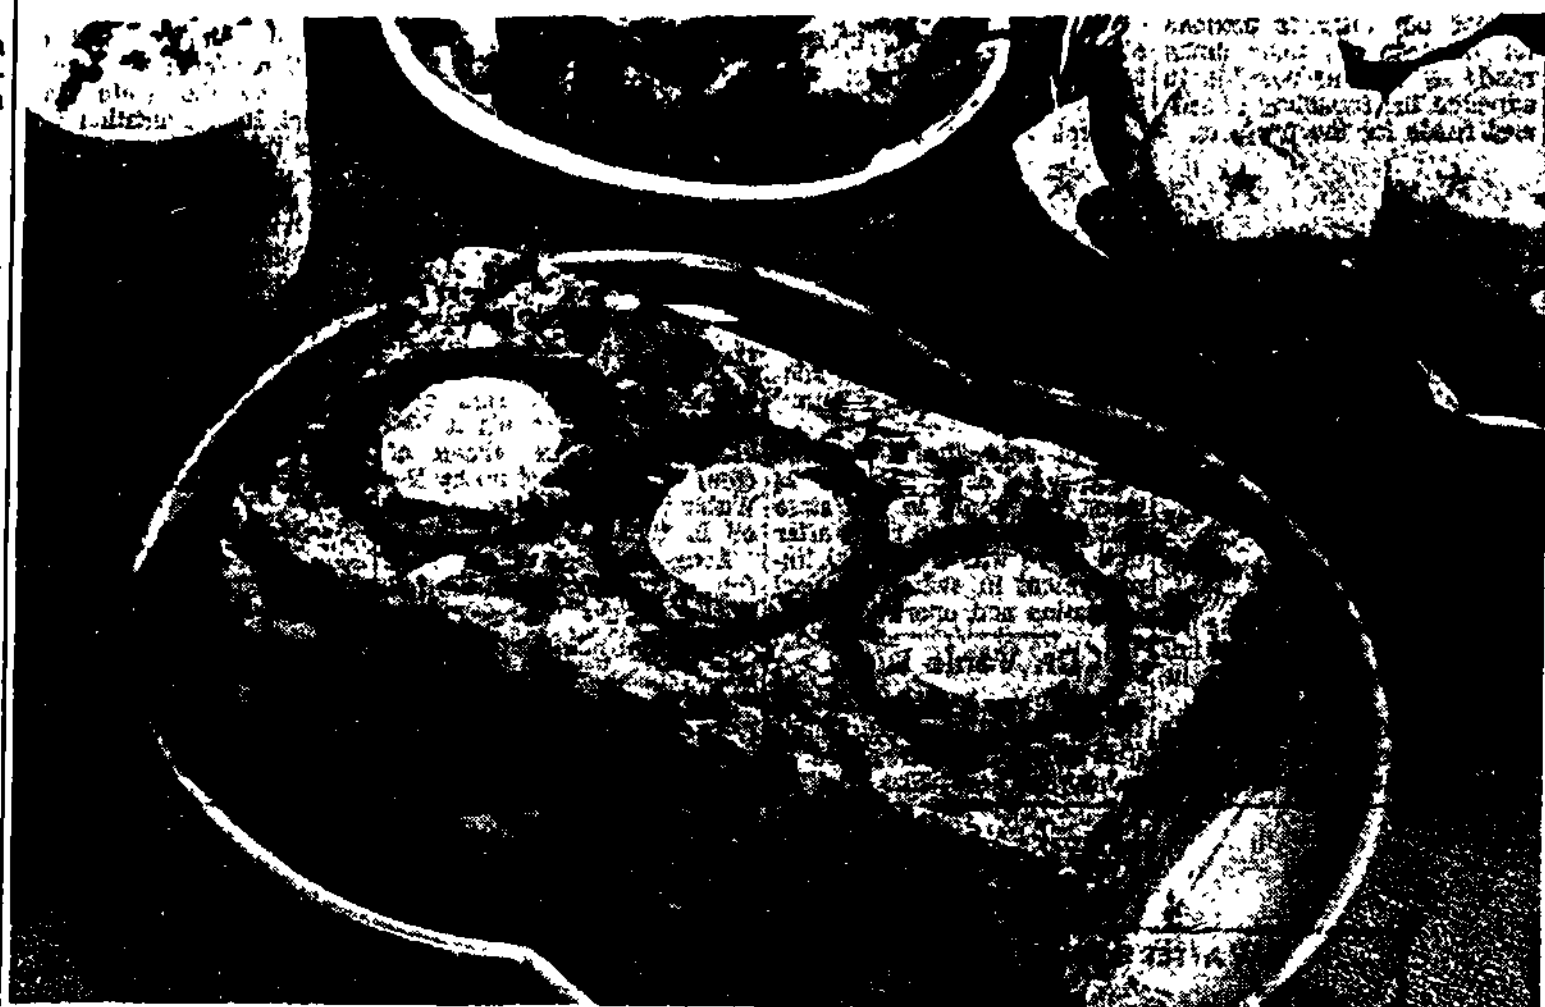

Brownies

To whet your appetite, here is a recipe for new and unusual peanut butter brownies.

Peanut Butter Brownies
1/2 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup margarine or butter
1/4 cup creamy or chunk style peanut butter.
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup chopped peanuts

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Melt margarine and peanut butter in saucepan over low heat. Add sugar to egg; heat well. Stir in peanut butter mixture and vanilla. Mix in sifted dry ingredients, then nuts. Turn into greased 8x8x2-inch baking pan. Bake in 350°F. (moderate) oven until brownies test done, about 30 minutes.

When The 'Girls' Come To Lunch

Your chance to really shine as a hostess comes with the menu you select. Perfectly suited to women's tastes and guaranteed to cause many an admiring comment is a luncheon centered around a delectable, molded meat salad.

This particular one, a pressed veal loaf, is filled with meat and spiced with an array of different, yet harmonious flavors. You'll do nearly all the preparation the day before, leaving you cool and calm when guests arrive. Serve the meal buffet style so all can view your eye-catching platter.

Here's a tip on the unmolding: Place the loaf pan in very hot water for 10 to 15 seconds. Set the platter upside-down on top of the pan, turn over and the loaf will neatly slip out.

PRESSED VEAL LOAF

4 to 5-pound veal shoulder
2 bay leaves
1 medium onion, sliced
1 stalk celery, cut in 1-inch pieces
8 cups water
1 green pepper
3 hard-cooked eggs
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
2 1/2 cups hot veal broth
2 beef bouillon cubes
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons celery seed
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup coarse cracker crumbs

Place veal, bay leaves, sliced onion and celery in cooking pan. Add water, cover lightly and simmer 2 to 2 1/2 hours or until veal is done.

Remove bones from veal and coarsely chop meat. (This should yield about 4 to 4 1/2 cups.) Strain veal liquid, reserving 2 1/2 cups. Cut 3 green pepper rings 1/4 inch thick. Remove seeds and white part and arrange in the bottom of a 9x5-inch loaf pan. Remove remaining seeds and chop green pepper. Cut 3 center slices from eggs 1/4 inch thick and arrange in the center of the green pepper rings. Coarsely chop remaining egg.

Soften gelatin in 1/4 cup cold water. Add hot veal broth and bouillon cubes to gelatin. Stir until dissolved. Measure 1/4 cup veal-gelatin mixture and pour over green pepper rings and egg slices. Chill until firm. Mix remaining gelatin mixture with chopped veal, chopped egg, chopped onion, pepper, salt, celery seed, lemon juice and cracker crumbs. Cool. Pour over congealed gelatin layer. Chill until firm. Unmold. Serve with Gourmet Dressing, if desired. 8 to 10 servings.

GOURMET DRESSING

2 cups dairy sour cream
1/4 cup prepared horseradish
2 teaspoons lemon juice
Combine all ingredients. Mix well. Yield: 2 1/4 cups.

Unusual, Delightful

Whole caraway seeds have been a favorite spice in both Europe and America for many years. Do try this excellent recipe and you'll join the caraway seed fan club.

FRESH CABBAGE WITH CARAWAY CHEESE SAUCE

1 medium (2 pounds) cabbage
1-inch boiling beef stock or water
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon caraway seeds
2 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 cup shredded sharp American cheese

Remove outer leaves from cabbage and save them for use in salads or soup. Cut head into 6 wedges. Place in a saucepan with 1-inch boiling beef stock or water and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Bring to boiling point and boil, uncovered, 5 minutes. Cover and cook 5 to 10 minutes or until cabbage is tender. (Cooking time depends upon tenderness of cabbage.) Remove cabbage from water to a serving dish. Place butter or margarine and caraway seeds in a saucepan. Heat until butter is melted. Blend in flour. Add milk and mix well. Stir and cook until of medium thickness. Stir in salt, black pepper and cheese. Heat only to melt cheese. Spoon over cabbage wedges.

YIELD: 6 servings.

Polynesian Recipe

The foods on the Polynesian Islands always have been intriguing. The natives have an ancient culinary art that differs from anywhere else in the world. Here is a recipe from Papete, Tahiti, that you may wish to try—you'll find that it has a bit of the French influence and the Polynesian-French combination is hard to beat. It is very 'gourmet', yet simple, and we think it is a fascinating idea for outdoor cookery.

Here it is:
BOEUF ET LANGOUSTE A LA BROCHE AVEC SAUCE CHORON
(Beef-Lobster Kabobs with Tomato Bernet Sauce)
Cut 1 1/2" cubes of beef (top or bottom round). Prepare with instant meat tenderizer following the directions on the jar. For each skewer: Thread with beef cube, then chunk of lobster tail (if frozen thaw first), then another beef cube followed by lobster chunk. Barbecue or grill over hot coals about 8 minutes or until lobster flakes to fork test. During cooking turn often, basting with a blend of equal parts wine and oil and one tablespoon of lemon juice.

For your Sauce Choron prepare a classic Bernet sauce blending in 2 tablespoons of tomato puree. Remove meat and lobster from skewer and spoon Sauce Choron over.

Chicken, Shrimp Go Oriental

Have you ever tried cooking traditional Japanese foods?

Here is a Japanese recipe which is breeze-easy to prepare.

YAKI-TORI TO KO-EBI (Chicken and Shrimp)

1 cup small mushroom caps
12 shrimp, peeled and cleaned
2 cups stock or 1 can consommé and 1/2 can water
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons soy sauce
2 pound chicken meat removed from bones and cut in bite-size cubes
1/2 cup sherry
6 spears canned white asparagus

Combine shrimp, stock, salt, sugar and soy sauce in the pan, bring to a boil and cook for seven minutes. Remove the shrimp and keep warm. Add the chicken cubes, sherry and mushrooms to the stock mixture and continue cooking for 10 minutes with pan covered until chicken is tender. Do not overcook. Remove chicken and mushrooms and keep warm. Put asparagus in stock and cook for two minutes. Arrange shrimp, chicken, mushrooms and asparagus in separate mounds on a platter and pour sauce over. Serves four. If the sauce seems too thin, boil it rapidly for a few minutes in uncovered pan.

A super-fast way to prepare this dish is to use canned mushrooms and shrimp and pre-cooked chicken, and reduce the cooking time, of course. With pre-cooked rice as a side dish and fresh fruit for dessert, this whole healthy low calorie feast can be made ready in ten minutes, while water is boiling for the green tea which must go with a Japanese meal.

CURRY BAKED PEACHES

1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) peach halves
1-3 cup chopped salted peanuts
2 tablespoons butter, or margarine
1/4 teaspoon curry powder
Arrange drained peaches cut side up in a heat-proof platter or shallow baking dish. Fill peach hollows with peanuts. Mix melted butter and curry powder. Spoon over peaches. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) about 15 minutes, until heated through. Serve with meat, fish or poultry. Eight to ten servings.

A Favorite

These Swiss-Lobster Sandwiches are so easy to prepare that they'll be family favorites. You might prepare a few extra to have on hand when guests drop by, too.

SWISS-LOBSTER SANDWICHES

1 cup coarsely chopped cooked lobster (6-ounce can)
1/2 cup cubed Swiss cheese (3 ounces)
1/4 cup salad dressing
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon tarragon vinegar
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 enriched hamburger buns
Butter or margarine, softened

Mix together lobster, Swiss cheese, salad dressing, onion, vinegar and salt.

Spread buns with butter or margarine. Spread lobster mixture on bottom halves of buns. Close sandwiches with bun tops. Wrap each sandwich in foil. Freeze, if desired, no longer than two weeks. For serving, bake in moderate oven (350 F.) 15 to 20 minutes, or until sandwiches are heated through. Serve hot. Makes 4 sandwiches.

Bring to boiling point and boil, uncovered, 5 minutes. Cover and cook 5 to 10 minutes or until cabbage is tender. (Cooking time depends upon tenderness of cabbage.) Remove cabbage from water to a serving dish. Place butter or margarine and caraway seeds in a saucepan. Heat until butter is melted. Blend in flour. Add milk and mix well. Stir and cook until of medium thickness. Stir in salt, black pepper and cheese. Heat only to melt cheese. Spoon over cabbage wedges. YIELD: 6 servings.

Polynesian Recipe

The foods on the Polynesian Islands always have been intriguing. The natives have an ancient culinary art that differs from anywhere else in the world. Here is a recipe from Papete, Tahiti, that you may wish to try—you'll find that it has a bit of the French influence and the Polynesian-French combination is hard to beat. It is very 'gourmet', yet simple, and we think it is a fascinating idea for outdoor cooking. Here it is:

BOEUF ET LANGOUSTE A LA BROCHE AVEC SAUCE CHORON

(Beef-Lobster Kabobs with Tomato Bernaise Sauce)
Cut 1 1/2" cubes of beef (top or bottom round). Prepare with instant meat tenderizer following the directions on the jar. For each skewer: Thread with beef cube, then chunk of lobster tail (if frozen thaw first), then another beef cube followed by lobster chunk. Barbecue or grill over hot coals about 8 minutes or until lobster flakes to fork test. During cooking turn often, basting with a blend of equal parts wine and oil and one tablespoon of lemon juice.

For your Sauce Choron prepare a classic Bernaise sauce blending in 2 tablespoons of tomato puree.

Remove meat and lobster from skewer and spoon Sauce Choron over.

Chicken, Shrimp Go Oriental

Have you ever tried cooking traditional Japanese foods?

Here is a Japanese recipe which is breeze-easy to prepare.

YAKI-TORI TO KO-EBI (Chicken and Shrimp)

1 cup small mushroom caps
12 shrimp, peeled and cleaned
2 cups stock or 1 can consommé and 1/2 can water
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons soy sauce
2 pound chicken meat removed from bones and cut in bite-size cubes

1/2 cup sherry
6 spears canned white asparagus

Combine shrimp, stock, salt, sugar and soy sauce in the pan, bring to a boil and cook for seven minutes. Remove the shrimp and keep warm. Add the chicken cubes, sherry and mushrooms to the stock mixture and continue cooking for 10 minutes with pan covered until chicken is tender. Do not overcook. Remove chicken and mushrooms and keep warm. Put asparagus in stock and cook for two minutes. Arrange shrimp, chicken, mushrooms and asparagus in separate mounds on a platter and pour sauce over. Serves four. If the sauce seems too thin, boil it rapidly for a few minutes in uncovered pan.

A super-fast way to prepare this dish is to use canned mushrooms and shrimp and pre-cooked chicken, and reduce the cooking time, of course. With pre-cooked rice as a side dish and fresh fruit for dessert, this whole healthy low calorie feast can be made ready in ten minutes, while water is boiling for the green tea which must go with a Japanese meal.

CURRY BAKED PEACHES

1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) peach halves
1-3 cup chopped salted peanuts
2 tablespoons butter, or margarine
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
Arrange drained peaches cut side up in a heat-proof platter or shallow baking dish. Fill peach hollows with peanuts. Mix melted butter and curry powder. Spoon over peaches. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) about 15 minutes, until heated through. Serve with meat, fish or poultry. Eight to ten servings.

U.S. Discounts China's Claim Soviet Reneged On N-Arms

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Washington (AP) — U.S. officials discounted Thursday a claim by Red China that the Soviet Union promised it nuclear weapons and then reneged on the pledge.

That portion of Thursday's Peking broadcast is viewed as propaganda aimed primarily at the pending limited test-ban treaty. But the Peking broadcast stripped the Red Chinese ideological camouflage from the split with the Soviets and revealed it for what it is—basically a quarrel over nuclear weapons.

Both present and former officials regard as ridiculous the effort by the Red Chinese to link the alleged atomic welshing with Soviet Premier Khrushchev's 1959 visit to President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Propaganda
Khrushchev emerges in the new propaganda blast from Peking as a man dedicated to preventing the spread of nuclear weapons and keeping in Soviet hands that maximum power on the Communist side.

The leaders of Red China stand out as men determined to make their country a first class nuclear power and bitterly resentful of Khrushchev's refusal to help them.

Without this crystallizing of the nuclear weapons issue back in 1959, according to the Chinese Communist story, the historic split between Peking and Moscow probably would not have developed as violently and rapidly as it has.

Most experts agree there are many factors contributing to hostility between the two Red giants but the nuclear weapons issue was decisive and of urgent importance.

Skeptical
U.S. officials said they are extremely skeptical of Red China's implied claim that Khrushchev agreed back in October 1957 to supply the Chinese Communists with atomic weapons manufacturing data. They do not think Khrushchev ever had any intention of helping the Chinese Reds achieve nuclear military power and thus a position of parity with the Soviet Union.

The State Department denied the Red Chinese charge of U.S. collusion to prevent Communist China from becoming a first class power.

The implication that Khrushchev's alleged decision to scrap the 1957 Atomic Weapons Agreement was somehow involved in his meeting with Eisenhower in September 1959 is completely discounted by well-informed U.S. officials and former officials.

Don't Recall
Former Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, who participated in the Camp David sessions and is now a trade negotiator for President Kennedy, told the Associated Press, "I don't recall the subject's ever having come up."

A high-ranking professional diplomat intimately familiar with the conference said flatly that there was no mention by Khrushchev to Eisenhower "that any such action had been taken."

The broadcast by a Peking spokesman Thursday was an effort to discredit the limited nuclear test-ban pact recently concluded by the United States, Britain and Russia.

Misleading
Thus it is regarded in official Washington as largely misleading propaganda trimmed and twisted to suit Red China's purpose. But it is regarded also as a disclosure of the trigger issue of the whole raging conflict in the Communist world.

U.S. officials said it is entirely believable that the Soviet government in October 1957 made an agreement with Red China to supply defense technology. It is also credible that Red China wanted to begin work on atomic weapons and may have interpreted Russia's technical aid commitment as meaning that the Russians should supply a sample A-bomb and manufacturing data.

But U.S. officials do not believe the Russians wrote or interpreted the treaty that way. Also, they think the initial differences over military technology may have come as a result of some Chinese refusal around 1958 or 1959 to grant defense facilities to Russia, including coastal bases.

Suspected
A few students of Soviet-Chinese relations and experts in the government have long suspected that the ideological controversy had some hard operational core and probably concerned nuclear weapons.

It has been known for several years that the Chinese Reds are unwilling to sign any kind of treaty which would deny them nuclear weapons.

It has been known also that Soviet officials have told various Western diplomats privately that they are concerned about Red China's getting "the bomb." They made no secret of their wish to prevent this.

Accuracy
The essential accuracy of the main point disclosed in Thursday's Chinese broadcast seems to be supported by what is known to have happened at the time. The Chinese say that on June 20, 1959, the Soviet government tore up the agreement to supply China with "new technology for national defense" and refused to provide China with a sample of an atomic bomb and technical data concerning its manufacture.

Khrushchev's visit to Eisenhower was announced in August 1959 and occurred in September. It was cordial enough and most of the talk turned around Eisenhower's determined effort to get Khrushchev to drop a virtual ultimatum for a Berlin settlement. There was not a great deal of talk about Red China.

What was significant was that after the visit to Washington Khrushchev flew to Peking, where he was coldly treated. It caused quite a stir at the time, being evidence of some kind of pulling apart by the Russians and Red Chi-

Syncom II Satellite Pinned Into Place

Washington (AP) — The Syncom II satellite was essentially pinned into place in the earth's sky Thursday—hovering in line of sight of more than one-third of the earth's surface.

It still had a slight drift eastward, but space agency scientists said it was expected and tolerable. They had planned to make periodic corrections to keep the satellite on station.

The satellite is broadcasting 16 hours a day in tests of its communications capabilities. Its station will allow it to provide a relay for 24-hour transatlantic communications.

Eventually 3 such satellites would be able to provide instant worldwide communications by hovering over the earth and within sight of its entire surface.

Scientists who have patiently nudged the satellite into position since its launch from Cape Canaveral on July 26 completed their last major maneuver shortly before 2 a.m. Thursday.

After watching their prize satellite—the first to operate in hovering orbit—they found its drift to the east. Rough and early measurements indicated the eastward drift was about .24 degrees. Scientists had hoped for a drift of .05 degrees.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration Chief James E. Webb hailed Syncom as "one of the outstanding feats in the history of space flight." He added: "The knowledge required to achieve the synchronous orbit with Syncom II fills an important gap in our exploration and utilization of space."

Actually scientists now have Syncom II in an orbit almost precisely matching the speed at which the earth turns on its axis. It is just a little faster, so it appears to drift to the east, the same direction toward which the earth turns.

Airline Subsidy Slash Proposed

... ON LOCAL-SERVICE ROUTES

Washington (AP)—The White House made public without comment Thursday a proposed program to trim local-service airline subsidy from its current $84-million annual level to about $56 million within 5 years.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, sponsor of the proposal, estimated that the total savings over the 5-year period—if the program is approved—would be $75 million.

The CAB prepared the plan in response to an April 5, 1962, order from President Kennedy to develop "a step-by-step program to assure sharp reductions of operating subsidies."

Order Called 'Illegal'

A spokesman for the scheduled airlines—trunk operators as well as the smaller lines—called the President's instructions to the CAB illegal, and contended the proposed cuts might imperil airlines financially and cut out essential air service.

In a statement, Stuart G. Tipton, president of the Air Transport Association, said "... the administration's request was by its nature contrary to the present national policy established by law," adding:

"This policy calls for the CAB to determine what air service is required by the public, such service is to be supported by subsidy if necessary."

Financial Straits

"If carried through, the program recommended by the CAB would result in elimination of needed public service and would place the air carriers involved in such financial straits that they would not be able to provide the required service or to develop the increased traffic that is anticipated by the report."

CAB officials said the main effect of the board's proposals would be on the 13 local-service airlines, the 3 helicopter airlines, and local operators in Hawaii and Alaska.

Kennedy, in releasing the CAB report, said he is asking Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges to head a committee to review it and then recommend any administrative action or new legislation that the committee decides is necessary.

The CAB noted that local-service airlines operate frequently between a number of cities—20 daily round trips between Chicago and Milwaukee, 12 between New York and Albany, and 10 between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, Fort Worth and Dallas, San Francisco and San Jose.

The board proposed, starting next Jan. 1, to withhold subsidy for flights of more than 7 daily round trips between two consecutive stations on a local-service airline's route.

In the second year of the program, subsidy payments would be restricted to 5 daily round trips, and in following years to 4.

David Bluestone, chief of the CAB's planning office, said the board believes that any town entitled to air service at all deserves at least two subsidized daily round trips—morning and evening.

In addition to gradual reduction of subsidized flights over high-density routes, the CAB expects the local service airlines to benefit from:

1. The probable elimination from their routes, in the next 3 years, of 39 towns that fail to generate a reasonable volume of traffic. The anticipated subsidy savings would be $1.2 million.

$6.9 Million Savings

2. Elimination of service to 44 airports, over a 5-year period, that are within 50 miles of a city producing a greater volume of traffic. This consolidation of service into area or regional airports would produce cumulative savings over the 5 years of $6.9 million, the CAB said.

The greatest single subsidy saving, however, will result from the fact that now that the local-service lines have completed a 10-year period of costly route and equipment expansion, their revenues should begin to increase at twice the rate that their costs rise—4% a year, compared with an anticipated two percent annual increase in expenses.

Dymond Doubts If Proposal Will Effect Frontier

Lewis W. Dymond, Frontier Airlines president contacted at his home office in Denver, said Thursday that he anticipated no adverse effect on Frontier from the proposed subsidy cut.

The impact of the proposal is directed to carriers serving larger airlines, he said.

"At least two and up to 4 daily round trips would continue to be subsidized," Dymond said. He added that Frontier's city-to-city flights average two a day.

Rail Unions Accept Wirtz' Suggestions

Washington (AP)—Railroad unions involved in the deadlocked work-rules dispute said Thursday they have accepted suggestions made by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz for bargaining procedures.

"The secretary of labor has in his hands documents of acceptance from the 5 railroad operating unions on his suggestions for settlement of the manning issue in the work rules dispute," a joint statement said.

A spokesman explained that two groups of unions—those representing the firemen and engineers and those representing 3 train-crew groups—accepted Wirtz' proposals in separate actions.

Concerned

The firemen and engineers are concerned with the firemen's job issue while the others are concerned with the other crucial issue in the dispute—train-crew makeup.

Wirtz' suggestions were advanced Aug. 2 by the secretary merely to define the limits within which bargaining could proceed and were not intended as settlement proposals. Both unions and carriers were announced later as having accepted the bargaining suggestions.

Union leaders Thursday, however, indicated that they have carried the matter much further and that both groups—locomotive crews and train crews—have provided information on their position which could be used in settlement clauses.

Gone Along

A spokesman for the fireman's union said the firemen have gone along with the proposals to the extent that they would be ready to submit them for ratification by their top policy committee.

That group—a 156-member Committee of General Chairmen—was summoned to Washington on Tuesday to be ready for a vote on any possible settlement plan. But no settlement plan has been agreed upon by the carriers and the unions.

The General Chairmen's Committee met again Thursday and it was announced the group will stay on in Washington until at least Saturday.

Voluntary Plan

In another development, a report was circulated that the railroad brotherhoods were seeking to devise some voluntary plan to lead to a settlement, either by additional negotiating with the carriers or by some sort of voluntary arbitration.

The fireman's union spokesman, however, said he had no direct knowledge of this but could not dispute it.

Settlement by negotiation or voluntary arbitration, would mean that it would no longer be necessary for Congress to act on President Kennedy's legislative proposal to turn the dispute over to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In A Truce

The two parties at present are in a truce to last until Aug. 29, the date on which the carriers are to introduce their controversial new work rules to eliminate thousands of jobs, which they consider unneeded. The unions are pledged to walk out as soon as such new rules are posted.

18-Month Term Handed Lincolnite For Forgery

Cosier had pleaded guilty Aug. 13 to passing a $50 forged check.

Murals In Town But Money Isn't

Three unpaid-for murals arrived at the Statehouse Thursday afternoon wrapped in heavy protective covering.

Executed by New York artist James Penney, the paintings will be locked from public inspection until a dollar crisis currently facing the Capitol Murals Commission is resolved. They have been insured.

The murals—"The Furrow," "Campfire" and "House Raising"—are to be hung above the east, north and west walls, respectively, inside the north entrance of the Capitol.

The commission doesn't have enough money to meet a $10,000 contract obligation to Penney and a New York decorating firm hired to install the murals.

Gov. Morrison will meet with the commission Monday to discuss the problem. He said he considers it serious enough to warrant a special session of the Legislature.

Spy, Drummond, Handed Life Sentence

New York (AP)—Navy Yeoman Nelson C. Drummond, first American Negro convicted as a cold war spy for Soviet Russia, Thursday was sentenced to life imprisonment. He stood in shocked rigidity as he heard the penalty for his sale of military secrets to Moscow on a cash-and-carry basis.

He was arrested last fall in the act of passing data to two aides of the Soviet United Nations Mission. The life sentence makes him eligible for parole only after 15-years behind bars.

Federal Judge Thomas F. Murphy could have sentenced the 34-year-old Drummond to death. But the judge told him:

"You have been convicted of a most awful crime. You have sold the security and the safety of your country for $24,000, and you did this while a member of the U.S. Navy ...

"Because of compassion for your innocent wife and the true devotion of your family, I sentence you to imprisonment for your natural life."

Prior to the sentencing, Asst. U.S. Atty. Vincent L. Broderick told the court: "He did this simply for money ... his motivation was a simple one. He wanted money and was willing to betray his country to obtain it."

In 1957

Drummond, a Navy veteran of 16 years, began selling government secrets to Russian agents in 1957 when he was stationed in London. He testified at his trial that he was framed by the Russians and falsely made to look like a spy. After that, he said, he was blackmailed into service as an espionage agent.

Feeding data on naval weapons systems, submarines and electronics to his contacts, Drummond collected $24,000 in the next 5 years, some of it in installments as large as $6,000 at a time.

Transferred to this country and stationed at the Newport, R.I., Naval Station, Drummond bought a bar and grill there with Russian payoff money, when his own basic salary was only $120 a month.

No Value

Drummond, a native of Baltimore, insisted that the material he passed to the Russians was of no value, and that he deceived them at every turn. However, Broderick told Judge Murphy:

"Passage of these documents did great damage to the United States ... Drummond was not duped by the Russians, and the Russians were not duped by him."

FBI agents moved in on Drummond a year ago, and planted closed circuit television sets in the Newport office where he worked as a naval clerk.

On Sept. 28, they watched Drummond remove at least 6 classified documents from an office file cabinet. Trained by G-men, Drummond then drove to a Larchmont, N.Y., diner and was seized in the act of turning over the data to two secretaries of the Soviet United Nations Mission. The Russians, Evgeni M. Prokhorov, 31, and Ivan Y. Vyrovod, 38, were recalled to Moscow a few days later.

Drummond's first trial on espionage charges ended May 23 in a hung jury, after the only Negro on the panel held out for acquittal because he did not want to expose the defendant to the death penalty.

Science Camp OK, But Bill To Become Doctor

By NANCY RAY
Star Staff Writer

Bill Minier had the chance of a lifetime to explore the possibilities of a scientific career in space, astronomy, nuclear physics and a dozen other, Space Age futures, but he's sticking to his original decision to become a doctor.

Bill, just 18, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Minier of 2433 Woodcrest, attended the West Virginia Centennial National Youth Science Camp this summer. He met and became friends with many of the 100 young scientists from all states in the Union, heard lectures from scientists of many different specialties, and even had a campfire chat with astronaut John Glenn.

He and Mike Siemon of Omaha represented the Cornhusker State at the conference which stressed the opportunities of scientific futures for youth, and evidently changed a few of the young men's minds in the process.

But not Bill. He's still headed for Harvard this fall, with an 11-year stint set out before he can begin a medical practice on his own.

The camp stressed physical fitness almost as highly as scientific knowledge, Bill relates. Overnight hikes, volleyball, baseball, camping, exploring caves, tennis and the like took up about half of the young campers' time.

"They had about everything," the Lincoln youth said, then amended his statement, "except girls."

There was a dance the first week of the 3-week session, he recalled, but no other educational activities. "It was probably better that way. We got more done," he admitted.

Glenn's visit occurred during an evening campfire gathering and the youths listened to the spaceman's description of what it was like to circle the earth in space.

Glenn 'Optimistic'

Glenn was "very optimistic" about U.S. chances of a successful moon trip within the next 10 years, Bill related, but doubted that he would be among the 3 men who will make the trip.

Trips to the nearby National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Green Bank were listed by Bill as among the top treats of the camp session.

"A few of us spent 3 hours with an expert in radio galaxies, discussing whether there was life on other planets, ways to discover new stars and lots of interesting things," he said.

Bill also cited the trip to Washington, D.C., as a highlight of the camp. The young scientists visited House and Senate sessions and met their state's legislators.

While other campers gained an average of 5 pounds during their stay, Bill admits he lost that much.

On his return to Nebraska, Bill made a report to Gov. Frank Morrison, who made his expense-paid camp stay possible.

Iraq Claims Capture

Damascus, Syria (AP) — Iraq claimed its armed forces attacked and captured the Kurdish rebel stronghold of Khormal, close to the Iranian frontier.

Cancer Claims Clifford Odets, Noted Dramatist

Hollywood (AP) — Cancer has claimed the life of Clifford Odets, whose plays of social protest in the 1930s made him one of America's foremost dramatists. He was 57.

The playwright died Wednesday night at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. He had been admitted to the hospital July 23 for treatment of stomach ulcers. An operation July 31 disclosed the presence of cancer.

Having achieved success in the theater and motion pictures, Odets died as he was about to enter a new medium, television. He had signed to write and supervise scripts for the new Richard Boone anthology on NBC.

Defended

He had defended himself from those who claimed serious dramatic writing could be done only for the stage: "All the really great artists are professional craftsmen who write everything."

Odets was a prolific writer who started late. Philadelphia-born, he worked as a professional actor in New York from the age of 18 until his late 20s with scant success. Winners were: 1st Competition, Bethel 13, Milwaukee; Military B, Bethel 4, Albuquerque; Military A, Bethel 33, Milwaukee; Exhibition B, Bethel 105, Des Plaines, Ill.; Exhibition A, Bethel 7, Milwaukee; Drum and Bugle Corps Bethel 18, Westminster, Colo.

Nancy Continues Her Deadly Wait

Denver (UPI)—Ten-month-old Nancy J. Schuldie of Scottsbluff, Neb., continues her deadly wait.

Surgeons say only a liver transplant operation can save her life, which will last less than a year without it.

But the liver will have to come from another child, no older than 3, who is dying of other causes.

Nancy Joanne was born with a liver defect—the organ has no ducts to carry body fluids.

Even if a donor is found, her chances will be slim, since nobody has survived a liver transplant operation. The only 3 such operations ever performed—all of them in Denver — ended ultimately in the death of the patient within 3 weeks.

The blonde baby is the special concern of a team of 7 surgeons who performed the other liver transplants, as well as two dozen kidney transplants and the only spleen transplant in recorded medical history.

The most recent kidney transplant was performed Monday. A healthy kidney was taken from a 41-year-old Arizona woman and put into the body of her 15-year-old daughter. Neither has been identified.

Both mother and daughter were "doing well" Thursday.

The surgeons already were preparing for another kidney transplant. They said an unidentified 46-year-old Chicago man would undergo such an operation before the end of the week. His brother may be the kidney donor, but was undergoing preliminary tests.

The spleen transplant patient, a 10-year-old boy from Pueblo, recently was granted several days leave from the hospital, but has been readmitted for a checkup. His operation was aimed at curing a strange lack of infection fighting elements in his body that left him extremely susceptible to lung infections.

Ironically, the spleen normally is removed from transplant patients as part of the means of cutting down the number of antibodies that might "reject" the transplanted organ.

Rifle Accident Kills Wisner Boy On Sidney Farm

Sidney (AP) — Nine-year-old Ricky L. Taege of Wisner was accidentally shot to death at the Rodney Mathewson farm southwest of Sidney Thursday.

Police said Ricky and one of the Mathewson children were playing with a 30.8 deer rifle when the weapon was accidentally discharged. The bullet hit Ricky in the head.

Ricky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Taege, was visiting at the farm. Mrs. Taege and Mrs. Mathewson are cousins.

Science Camp OK, But Bill To Become Doctor

Star Staff Writer

Bill Minier had the chance of a lifetime to explore the possibilities of a scientific career in space, astronomy, nuclear physics and a dozen other Space Age futures, but he's sticking to his original decision to become a doctor.

Bill, just 18, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Minier of 243 Woodcrest, attended the West Virginia Centennial National Youth Science Camp this summer. He met and became friends with many of the 100 young scientists from all states in the Union, heard lectures from scientists of many different specialties, and even had a campfire chat with astronaut John Glenn.

He and Mike Slemmon, Omaha, represented the Cornhusker State at the conference, which stressed the opportunities of scientific futures for youth, and evidently changed a few of the young men's minds in the process.

But not Bill. He's still headed for Harvard this fall, with an 11-year stint set out before he can begin a medical practice on his own.

The camp stressed physical fitness almost as highly as scientific knowledge, Bill relates. Overnight hikes, volleyball, baseball, camping, exploring caves, tennis and the like took up about half of the young campers' time.

"They had about everything," the Lincoln youth said, then amended his statement, "except girls."

There was a dance the first week of the 3-week session, he recalled, but no other educational activities. "It was probably better that way. We got more done," he admitted.

Glenn's visit occurred during an evening campfire gathering and the youths listened to the spaceman's description of what it was like to circle the earth in space.

Glenn "Optimistic" about U.S. chances of a successful moon trip within the next 10 years, Bill related, but doubted that he would be among the 3 men who will make the try.

Trips to the nearby National Radio Astronomy Observatory at Green Bank were listed by Bill as among the top treats of the camp session.

"A few of us spent 3 hours with an expert in radio galaxies, discussing whether there was life on other planets, ways to discover new stars and lots of interesting things," he said.

Bill also cited the trip to Washington, D.C., as a highlight of the camp. The young scientists visited House and Senate sessions and met their state's legislators.

While other campers gained an average of 5 pounds during their stay, Bill admits he lost that much.

Cancer Claims Clifford Odets, Noted Dramatist

Hollywood (U) — Cancer has claimed the life of Clifford Odets, whose plays of social protest in the 1930s made him one of America's foremost dramatists. He was 57.

The playwright died Wednesday night at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. He had been admitted to the hospital July 23 for treatment of stomach ulcers. An operation July 31 disclosed the presence of cancer.

Having achieved success in the theater and motion pictures, Odets died as he was about to enter a new medium, television. He had signed to write and supervise scripts for the new Lincoln B. O. N. C. anthology on NBC.

He had defended himself from those who claimed serious dramatic writing could be done only for the stage. "All the really great artists are professional craftsmen who write everything," Odets was a prolific writer who started late. Philadelphia-born, he worked as a professional actor in New York from the age of 18 until his late 20s with scant success. "I began writing out of frustration," he said, admitting he might never have become a playwright "if I could have gotten decent parts as an actor."

He was 29 when his first play, "Awake and Sing," was produced. Its eloquent cry against the social inequities of the depression era hit Broadway with intense force. It was followed by "Waiting for Lefty," "Golden Boy," "Rocket to the Moon" and other plays. Some critics hailed Odets as the most important playwright since Eugene O'Neill.

Odets was identified with many liberal causes. In 1952 he appeared before the House Un-American Activities Committee and announced himself a "disillusioned ex-Communist." He testified that he had allowed many Communist-front organizations to use his name after he left the party in 1935.

He first came to Hollywood in 1936 to write "The General Died at Dawn." As the success of his plays declined, he came here to work more frequently, finally making his home in Beverly Hills. Among the films he wrote were "Humoresque," "Deadline at Dawn," "Wild in the Country" and "Sweet Smell of Success."

Odets' works were the touchstone for success by many stars.

John Garfield was a boy out of acting school when "Awake and Sing" made him a star. He also appeared on Broadway in Odets' "Golden Boy," which was William Holden's first starring role in films.

Odets wrote and directed "None But the Lonely Heart," which provided Cary Grant with a rare dramatic role and an oscar for Ethel Barrymore. The film version of "Country Girl" won an academy award for Grace Kelly. The movie of another Odets play, "Clash by Night" gave Marilyn Monroe her first real dramatic role.

Odets married two actresses, Luise Rainer and Betty Grayson, both of whom divorced him. He had two children from the second marriage, Nora, 18, and Walt Whitman Odets, 16.

Ex-Convicts Lose Friend

... REV. CLARK IS CLAIMED

St. Louis (P) — The Rev. Charles Dismas Clark died of a heart attack Thursday.

His death was a major tragedy to normally unemotional ex-convicts at his rehabilitation center, Dismas House.

"What will happen to us now, nobody can take his place," an elderly heavily tattooed convicted robber asked of no one in particular.

Father Clark, 62, had helped an estimated 3,500 ex-convicts toward rehabilitation.

Standstill

The news brought to a virtual standstill re-decorating work on the "half-way house" for criminals trying to go straight. They had been

He had a 6-week hospital stay 6 months ago, presumably for rest and a checkup. "They told us he had an overworked heart, but he didn't complain," said 3-time loser Don Congram, director of employment at the center. "This came as a terrible surprise because we thought we would have him back soon."

"These guys don't say much. But they know what they've lost."

Aide Helped

An Episcopal ministerial student who has been working with Father Clark this summer, Neal Hearn, helped Congram with the routine chores, opening mail and answering a constantly ringing telephone.

Hearn said "We'll just have to keep the wheels moving. There's nothing else to do."

Father Clark became so wrapped up in his cause that he even adopted his middle name in honor of the good chief some Biblical accounts say died on the cross beside Christ.

Funeral services were tentatively scheduled for Monday at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, near Dismas House.

Could Have

Father Clark was one of 13 children of an Illinois coal miner. He was reared near Decatur, Ill., and he once said: "I was a tough kid raised in a tough environment. I could easily have become a criminal myself."

But he encountered a priest who impressed him so that he decided to dedicate his life to the Roman Catholic Church. It was several years before he became interested in working with criminals.

The priest's career became the subject of a motion picture entitled "The Hoodlum Priest." Controversy followed it too. Father Clark became embroiled in a lawsuit over the film instituted by a St. Louis public relations man, Irving Shiffrin. The court ruled against Shiffrin, and the priest's testimony in Shiffrin's behalf was criticized.

Busy Place

Some 2,100 ex-convicts have passed through the center which has a population of from 30 to 60 daily. In addition, Father Clark is credited with helping another 1,500 ex-convicts outside the house.

The future of Dismas House is practically assured because numerous influential men are behind it.

DEMONSTRATOR ... happy to be caught?

House Group Tightens Taxation Of Dividends

Washington (P) — Stiffer rules on the taxation of dividends were voted Thursday by the House Ways and Means Committee as it completed basic work on a bill to reduce practically everyone's income tax.

If the House and Senate accepted the bill, the new dividend rules will increase the tax on larger dividend recipients by an aggregate amount estimated at $300 million. But people holding just a few shares might come out even or ahead.

The present law works this way: A taxpayer may exclude from his income the first $50 of dividends received—$100 in the case of a husband and wife owning stock jointly. Then 4% of the remainder may be applied as a direct credit against income tax.

Provision

The provision the committee voted to put into the bill is preparing for the House would do this: Double the $50 or $100 exclusion, effective on dividends received beginning Jan. 1, 1964, but at the same time drop the credit from 4% to 2%. Beginning Jan. 1, 1965, the remaining 2% credit would be dropped.

The committee also adopted the Treasury's proposal for gradually speeding up collection of corporate income tax so that after 7 years corporations will be paying currently, as individuals now do. Corporations now pay taxes on a year's income during the second half of that year and the first half of the next.

This would mean that for those 7 years corporations would not get the full cash benefit of the corporate tax reduction the committee voted, even though the reduction would be reflected in their profits. But the Treasury said the rate of speedup was so arranged that no corporation would have to pay out more in any year than it would under present law, and most would receive some cash benefit.

Essentials

Thursday's decisions completed the essential outline of the bill embodying a net tax cut of more than $10.5 billion, in two stages. The reduction would come about through an across-the-board slash in tax rates, partially offset by some changes that would increase revenues.

The committee's decision on dividend taxation was a compromise. President Kennedy had called for outright repeal of the dividend exclusion and credit, a move estimated to produce $400 million annual revenue. It was one of the most controversial proposals in his whole tax package.

The committee vote Thursday was understood to be 13-12, with the first and only woman member of the tax-writing committee, Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., casting the deciding vote.

GOP Opposed

All 10 Republicans, it was reported, voted against any change in the present dividend provision, which was put in the law 9 years ago. At that time Republicans, controlling both executive and legislative branches of government, instituted it as a first step to correct what they called double taxation of dividends. It has been a party issue ever since.

The two Democrats who voted with the Republicans Thursday were understood to be Reps. A. Sydney Herlong Jr. of Florida and John C. Watts of Kentucky.

A preliminary vote was 12-12, which under committee rules defeats a motion. Mrs. Griffiths was not present. She had previously opposed changing the rules on dividends, complaining that the committee had pared down administration proposals for tightening tax rules on the oil industry and other segments of the economy. Dividend recipients, Mrs. Griffiths contended, represented a larger part of the population than these.

After her earlier dissent, the committee did go part way with Treasury recommendations on oil taxation, but still rejected the greater part of the administration recommendations in this field.

Mrs. Griffiths was understood she was still unsatisfied. However, when the final vote on the dividend tax came Thursday it is understood she voted with the Democratic majority.

170 Negroes Arrested In E. St. Louis

East St. Louis, Ill. (P)—City, state and county police arrested some 170 Negroes, most of them teen-aged youths, while breaking up a noisy racial demonstration at the First National Bank Thursday.

Officers charged the adults arrested with assembling unlawfully in a mob form.

Two Negroes were taken on stretchers to St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis after their appearance at the police station and another was charged with interfering with justice.

Those treated were identified as Homer Randolph, head of the East St. Louis chapter of the Committee on Racial Equality, and the Rev. C. B. Malloy, a demonstrator. They were not believed seriously hurt. They claimed they were struck while scuffling with police.

Clyde Jordan, editor of the East Side Monitor, a weekly newspaper aimed at Negro readers, was charged in a warrant with "unlawfully obstructing justice."

Patrolman Jack McNutt signed the complaint, saying Jordan slugged him twice while he was carrying a demonstrator. Jordan claimed the officer hit him.

The demonstrators were released on bond.

The demonstrators, about twice as many as paraded peacefully Wednesday before 5 downtown financial institutions, sat or lay down on the floor of the bank, completely covering the lobby.

When they refused to move as directed by city police, officers called for help from Illinois State Police and the St. Clair County sheriff's office. Several Patrol cars brought reinforcements.

Most of the demonstrators were carried from the bank.

Nine NU Army ROTC Students Cited At Camp

The students are James F. Brodecky, Glenn L. Buck, Karl S. Halter, Alan C. Hurd, Juris Jaunitis, Dennis J. Lyon, Joseph H. Pangborn, Robert A. Patterson and James Stuart.

Williams Wants Soybean Probe

Washington (UPI) — Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., Thursday called for a full-scale congressional investigation of soybean oil purchases by the Agriculture Department for the "Food-For-Peace" program.

In a Senate speech, Williams charged that the department contracted for 500 million pounds of refined salad oil and shortening at a time when it had projected requirements for only half that amount. The contracts totaled $90.4 million.

Williams charged that 87% of the last 400 million pounds of the oil was furnished by two contractors who had been barred from participating in any programs financed by the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC).

He identified the firms as the Shortening Corporation of America Inc., of Jersey City, N. J., and the Scarborough Co., of New York City.

After buying about 87% of this last 400 million pounds of oils from this previously established irresponsible source," Williams said, "the government again got hooked, as should have been expected."

"Practically all of this 400 million pounds of salad oil ... was delivered to the government in faulty containers, leaky cans, etc., with the result that as of the most recent report, much of this material had been declared unfit for human consumption and was still lying in the warehouses in this country or on the wharfs scattered in ports throughout the world."

Williams said some of the countries to which the oil had been shipped under the Food-For-Peace program are refusing to allow it to be distributed to their people "on the basis that it is rancid and unfit for human consumption."

Williams said the government is now trying to salvage some of its loss by storing the oil in air-conditioned warehouses to prevent further spoilage. Williams told the senate that the conditions "have been well known by the Agriculture Department, the State Department and the Food-For-Peace administration officials over the past years, and the only major effort which I have detected wherein they expressed any concern was to keep this covered up."

preparing for the Oct. 13 fourth anniversary of Dismas House, which the priest established.

A happy affair had been planned with Father Clark conducting an open house at the place.

But the men, 42 of them, worked only sporadically, Thursday tending to cluster up in small groups and talk in whispers.

Controversial

The controversial Jesuit priest, who gained national fame for his work with criminals, entered the hospital 3 weeks ago and had planned to leave it this weekend.

He had a 6-week hospital stay 6 months ago, presumably for rest and a checkup. "They told us he had an overworked heart, but he didn't complain," said 3-time loser Don Congram, director of employment at the center. "This came as a terrible surprise because we thought we would have him back soon."

Alde Helped An Episcopal ministerial student who has been working with Father Clark this summer, Neal Hearn, helped Congram with the routine chores, opening mail and answering a constantly ringing telephone.

Hearn said "We'll just have to keep the wheels moving. There's nothing else to do."

Father Clark became so wrapped up in his cause that he even adopted his middle name in honor of the good thief some Biblical accounts say died on the cross beside Christ.

Funeral services were tentatively scheduled for Monday at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, near Dismas House.

Could Have

Father Clark was one of 13 children of an Illinois coal miner. He was reared near Decatur, Ill., and he once said: "I was a tough kid raised in a tough environment. I could easily have become a criminal myself."

But he encountered a priest who impressed him so that he decided to dedicate his life to the Roman Catholic Church. It was several years before he became interested in working with criminals.

The priest's career became the subject of a motion picture entitled "The Hoodlum Priest." Controversy followed it too. Father Clark became embroiled in a lawsuit over the film instituted by a St. Louis public relations man, Irving Shiffrin. The court ruled against Shiffrin, and the priest's testimony in Shiffrin's behalf was criticized.

Busy Place

Some 2,100 ex-convicts have passed through the center which has a population of from 30 to 60 daily. In addition, Father Clark is credited with helping another 1,500 ex-convicts outside the house.

The future of Dismas House is practically assured because numerous influential men are behind it.

House Group Tightens Taxation Of Dividends

Washington (AP) — Stiffer rules on the taxation of dividends were voted Thursday by the House Ways and Means Committee as it completed basic work on a bill to reduce practically everyone's income tax.

If the House and Senate accept them, the new dividend rules will increase the tax on larger dividend recipients by an aggregate amount estimated at $300 million. But people holding just a few shares might come out even or ahead.

The present law works this way: A taxpayer may exclude from his income the first $50 of dividends received—$100 in the case of a husband and wife owning stock jointly. Then 4% of the remainder may be applied as a direct credit against income tax.

Provision

The provision the committee voted to put into the bill is preparing for the House would do this: Double the $50 or $100 exclusion, effective on dividends received beginning Jan. 1, 1964, but at the same time drop the credit from 4% to 2%. Beginning Jan. 1, 1965, the remaining 2% credit would be dropped.

The committee also adopted the Treasury's proposal for gradually speeding up collection of corporate income tax so that after 7 years corporations will be paying currently, as individuals now do. Corporations now pay taxes on a year's income during the second half of that year and the first half of the next.

This would mean that for those 7 years corporations would not get the full cash benefit of the corporate tax reduction the committee voted, even though the reduction would be reflected in their profits. But the Treasury said the rate of speedup was so arranged that no corporation would have to pay out more in any year than it would under present law, and most would receive some cash benefit.

Essentials

Thursday's decisions completed the essential outline of the bill embodying a net tax cut of more than $10.5 billion, in two stages. The reduction would come about through an across-the-board slash in tax rates, partially offset by some changes that would increase revenues.

The committee's decision on dividend taxation was a compromise. President Kennedy had called for outright repeal of the dividend exclusion and credit, a move estimated to produce $460 million annual revenue. It was one of the most controversial proposals in his whole tax package.

The committee vote Thursday was understood to be 13-12, with the first and only woman member of the tax-writing committee, Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., casting the deciding vote.

GOP Opposed

All 10 Republicans, it was reported, voted against any change in the present dividend provision, which was put in the law 9 years ago. At that time Republicans, controlling both executive and legislative branches of government, instituted it as a first step to correct what they called double taxation of dividends. It has been a party issue ever since.

The two Democrats who voted with the Republicans Thursday were understood to be Reps. A. Sydney Herlong Jr. of Florida and John C. Watts of Kentucky.

A preliminary vote was 12-12, which under committee rules defeats a motion. Mrs. Griffiths was not present. She had previously opposed changing the rules on dividends, complaining that the committee had pared down administration proposals for tightening tax rules on the oil industry and other segments of the economy. Dividend recipients, Mrs. Griffiths contended, represented a larger part of the population than these.

After her earlier dissent, the committee did go part way with Treasury recommendations on oil taxation, but still rejected the greater part of the administration recommendations in this field.

Mrs. Griffiths had indicated she was still unsatisfied. However, when the final vote on the dividend tax came Thursday it is understood she voted with the Democratic majority.

170 Negroes Arrested In E. St. Louis

East St. Louis, Ill. (AP) — City, state and county police arrested some 170 Negroes, most of them teen-agers, while breaking up a noisy racial demonstration at the First National Bank Thursday.

Officers charged the adults arrested with assembling unlawfully in a mob form.

Two Negroes were taken on stretchers to St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis after their appearance at the police station and another was charged with interfering with justice.

Those treated were identified as Homer Randolph, head of the East St. Louis chapter of the Committee on Racial Equality, and the Rev. C. B. Malloy, a demonstrator. They were not believed seriously hurt. They claimed they were struck while scuffling with police.

Clyde Jordan, editor of the East Side Monitor, a weekly newspaper aimed at Negro readers, was charged in a warrant with "unlawfully obstructing justice."

Patrolman Jack McNutt signed the complaint, saying Jordan slugged him twice while he was carrying a demonstrator. Jordan claimed the officer hit him.

The demonstrators were released on bond.

The demonstrators, about twice as many as paraded peacefully Wednesday before 5 downtown financial institutions, sat or lay down on the floor of the bank, completely covering the lobby.

When they refused to move as directed by city police, officers called for help from Illinois State Police and the St. Clair County sheriff's office. Several Patrol cars brought reinforcements.

Most of the demonstrators were carried from the bank.

Nine NU Army ROTC Students Cited At Camp

The students are James F. Brodecky, Glenn L. Buck, Karl S. Halter, Alan C. Hurd, Juris Jannitis, Dennis J. Lyon, Joseph H. Pangborn, Robert A. Patterson and James Stuart.

Williams Wants Soybean Probe

Washington (UPI) — Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., Thursday called for a full-scale congressional investigation of soybean oil purchases by the Agriculture Department for the "Food-For-Peace" program.

In a Senate speech, Williams charged that the department contracted for 500 million pounds of refined salad oil and shortening at a time when it had projected requirements for only half that amount. The contracts totaled $90.4 million.

Williams charged that 87% of the last 400 million pounds of the oil was furnished by two contractors who had been barred from participating in any programs financed by the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC).

He identified the firms as the Shortening Corporation of America Inc., of Jersey City, N. J., and the Scarborough Co., of New York City.

After buying about 87% of this last 400 million pounds of oil from this previously established source, Williams said, "the government again got hooked, as should have been expected."

"Practically all of this 400 million pounds of salad oil ... was delivered to the government in faulty containers, leaky cans, etc., with the result that as of the most recent report, much of this material had been declared unfit for human consumption and was still lying in the warehouse."

Carpenter Lauds Normal Board's Stand On Salaries

Sen. Terry Carpenter Thursday said the State Normal Board "ought to be commended" for taking faculty salary action independent of the recommendations made by the Legislature's Budget Committee.

"That was one of the most heartening things I've seen," the Scottsbluff lawmaker said. "It was gratifying."

Carpenter said "every other department of state government ought to take the same attitude."

The Normal Board last month adopted a salary schedule which ignored the Budget Committee's recommendations.

Speaking of the Budget Committee, Carpenter asked: "Who do they think they are?"

"The Budget Committee doesn't have the right to set salaries."

houses in this country or on the wharfs scattered in ports throughout the world." Williams said some of the countries to which the oil had been shipped under the Food-For-Peace program are refusing to allow it to be distributed to their people "on the basis that it is rancid and unfit for human consumption."

Williams said the government is now trying to salvage some of its loss by storing the oil in air-conditioned warehouses to prevent further spoilage.

Williams told the Senate that the conditions "have been well known by the Agriculture Department, the State Department and the Food-For-Peace administration officials over the past years, and the only major effort which I have detected wherein they expressed any concern was to keep this covered up."

State Traffic Deaths Drop Continued

Nebraska's traffic fatalities continued to drop during July, when the state finished the month with 31 traffic deaths as compared to 33 for July last year. July was the fifth straight month to experience a decrease this year as compared to the same months last year.

In reporting on the July deaths, Colonel D. J. Casey reported that 15 or nearly half of the July deaths were out-of-state motorists. This high figure should alert Nebraska motorists to the fact that when they are driving in other states, extra caution is needed as they are driving on strange highways. They must observe local traffic regulations and be alert for local traffic hazards.

The patrol report for July showed that two-car accidents caused 20 deaths, 8 lives were lost in one-car accidents, two were pedestrians, and one was a bicyclist.

Highway accidents accounted for 22 deaths, city street accidents 5, and 4 were on county roads.

Daytime accidents accounted for 22 of the July traffic toll. Nine deaths were in accidents at night.

Bids Are Asked On Lancaster Co. Highway Project

The State Department of Roads announced Thursday it will have a bid opening Sept. 5 for work on 0.7 miles of U.S. 77 south of Lincoln.

The estimated cost of the federal aid primary project is $490,000, with the state and federal government splitting the cost.

Governor Talks To Troops

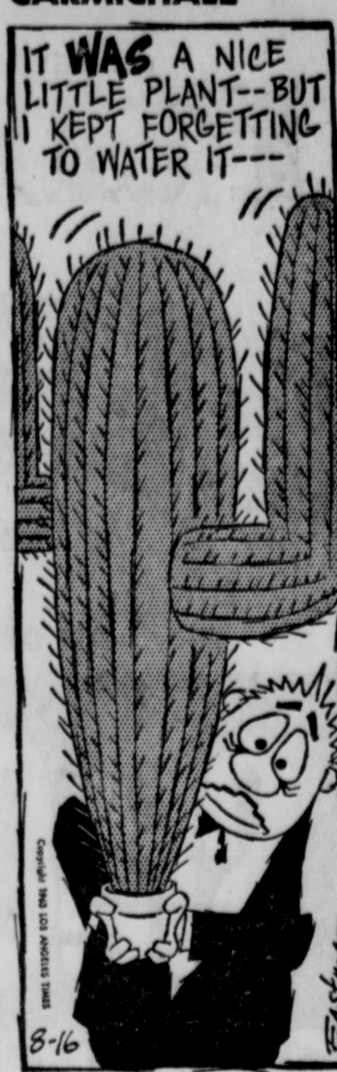

Gov. Frank Morrison conversed from his office Thursday morning with Nebraska National Guard troops in the field at Camp Ripley, Minn., some 550 miles away.

Morrison's conversation with Sgt. Richard D. Ruth of Rising City, a member of the Columbus guard unit, was arranged by Lt. Col. Joseph R. Jelinek.

They talked about field training, mosquitos, the food there and weather, although reception was not the best.

The governor's words were relayed over the army's PRC-10 radio to the National Guard maintenance building here where the signal was relayed to Camp Ripley.

Permission Asked To File Brief In Time Sales Case

The Retail Farm Equipment Association has asked the Nebraska Supreme Court for permission to file a brief in the motion for rehearing of the Elder versus Doerr time-sales case.

This was the action, originally filed in Douglas County District Court, in which the State Supreme Court in June ruled the 1959 Nebraska Installment Sales Act was invalid.

The association's petition said it represents around 500 farm implement dealers in Nebraska who are interested in the case.

If approved, the association would file an amicus curiae (friend of the court) brief. The petition doesn't say so, but it would most likely be in behalf of Doerr, asking the court to reverse itself and hold the 1959 act constitutional.

The State Department of Roads announced Thursday it will have a bid opening Sept. 5 for work on 0.7 miles of U.S. 77 south of Lincoln.

The estimated cost of the federal aid primary project is $490,000, with the state and federal government splitting the cost.

Governor Talks To Troops

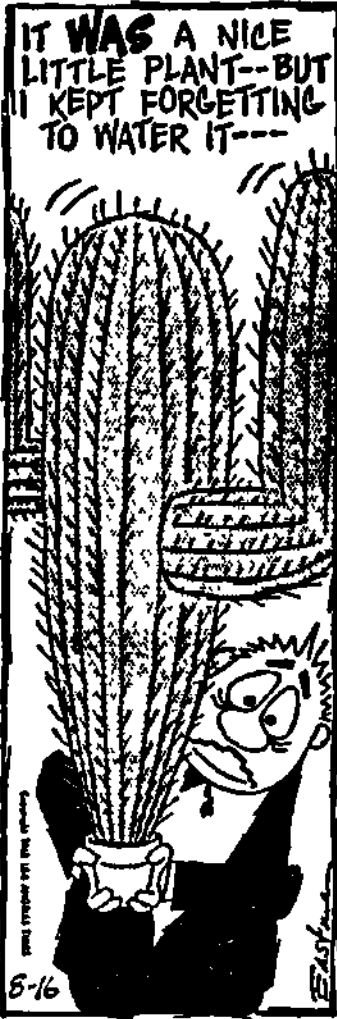

Gov. Frank Morrison conversed from his office Thursday morning with Nebraska National Guard troops in the field at Camp Ripley, Minn., some 550 miles away.

Morrison's conversation with Sgt. Richard D. Ruth of Rising City, a member of the Columbus guard unit, was arranged by Lt. Col. Joseph R. Jelinek.

They talked about field training, mosquitos, the food there and weather, although reception was not the best.

The governor's words were relayed over the army's PRC-10 radio to the National

Permission Asked To File Brief In Time Sales Case

The Retail Farm Equipment Association has asked the Nebraska Supreme Court for permission to file a brief in the motion for rehearing of the Elder versus Doerr time-sales case.

The association's petition said it represents around 500 farm implement dealers in Nebraska who are interested in the case.

in behalf of Doerr, asking the court to reverse itself and hold the 1959 act constitutional.

This was the action, originally filed in Douglas County District Court, in which the State Supreme Court in June ruled the 1959 Nebraska Installment Sales Act was invalid.

If approved, the association would file an amicus curiae (friend of the court) brief. The petition doesn't say so, but it would most likely be

Surprise Party Is Farewell

Miss Stephanie Wiman was the very surprised guest of honor on Tuesday evening when she arrived at the home of Miss Linda Purbaugh to find 12 University High School classmates gathered for a slumber party. Miss Janet Davidson was co-hostess for the party, and as the Purbaugh home could not possibly hold all the teen-agers, it was the backyard and tents for the girls. From the left (standing) are Carol Hammer, Linda Purbaugh, Janet Davidson and Mariella Wightman; and (on the ground) Connie Klein, Mary Moore, Stephanie, Ann Black and Sheryl Neal.

Stephanie, with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Raymond D. Wiman, and brothers, Scott and George, will leave Lincoln on Aug. 26, for their new home in Iowa City, Iowa. Dr. Wiman, who received his doctorate earlier this month, will be a member of the faculty at the University of Iowa.

There is variety in the news this morning — There is a new address to mention, and we have two more parties to add to Dorrie O'Brien's list of pre-nuptial courtesies. Then, too, we have word of homecomers who will be of interest.

Now to the courtesies for Miss O'Brien— On Sunday evening Miss O'Brien, whose marriage to Gene Gage will be solemnized on Aug. 30, will be complimented by Miss Susan Kay Wagner and Miss Sherry Rosewell who will be hostesses at a dessert supper at the home of Miss Wagner.

The guest list of 30 will include a group of the bride-elect's close friends who will present her with a miscellaneous shower.

Paying pre-nuptial courtesies to Miss O'Brien on Monday evening will be Mrs. George Holyoke and her mother, Mrs. R. E. Weirich who will entertain at the home of Mrs. Holyoke. Once again the plans for the evening include a dessert supper—and a bathroom shower. The guest list will include the young set friends of Miss O'Brien.

About that new address we mentioned — It is 1641 Circle Dr., and late next week it will be the address of Mr.

and Mrs. B. Frank Watson and their son, Francis. Mr. and Mrs. Watson and their son will be moving into their new home from 1901 B St., on Aug. 23.

Back in town are Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Olson who have just returned from Detroit, Mich., where they had a very special interest in a young actress whose stage name is Leesa Troy.

Miss Troy off-stage is Barbara Olson, Mr. Olson's daughter — and a former Lincoln girl.

The talented young lady currently is starring in "Here's Love" which, incidentally, is the musical version of "Miracle of 34th Street."

Mr. and Mrs. Olson whose primary interest was Miss

Troy nevertheless enjoyed the work of David Doyle who also is a member of the "Here's Love" cast, and who also is from Lincoln.

We just learned that Myron Roberts will be returning home this week and will spend his year's sabbatical leave from the University of Nebraska right here in Lincoln. He plans to devote his time to composing.

Mr. Roberts has been spending the past few months in England, and we think that it is more than a little noteworthy that one of his most recent compositions was presented at Westminster Abbey. We also understand that Mr. Roberts declined an invitation to direct the performance of his work.

Thursday Wedding

The marriage of Miss Carol Ann Newburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorraine H. Newburn, to Harry D. Jarred, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Jarred of Sheridan, Ore., was solemnized Thursday evening, Aug. 15, at the Lincoln Heights Methodist Church. The lines of the 8 o'clock service were read by the Rev. Robert Holbrook in the presence of members of the immediate families, and Mrs. Derwin Ball, organist, played the wedding music.

The maid of honor and bride's only was Miss Treva Ann Jarred, sister of the bridegroom. Her daytime frock of mint green sheer was complemented by white accessories and a shoulder corsage of white carnations.

For her wedding, the bride wore an afternoon frock in coral and white print with white accessories. She carried a crescent arrangement of white feathered carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Jarred will make their home in Platts-

Wedding Plans, Parties

Announcing the members of her bridal party is Miss Charlene Ann Welsh, who will become the bride of Leroy C. McCoy on Saturday, Aug. 24.

The bride-to-be, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence M. Welsh, has named Miss Karla Shaffer of Frankfort, Kan., as her maid of honor, and her bridesmaids will be Miss Carol Ramer and Miss Judy Andrus.

Miss Marilyn Krueger and Miss Elizabeth Meyers will light the candles for the 3 o'clock ceremony, which will be solemnized at the First Presbyterian Church.

Serving his brother as best man will be James McCoy, and the corps of ushers will include Richard McCoy, also a brother of the bridegroom-elect; David Liter, Omaha; Frank Teleen and Thomas Drbal, Jr.

Adding to the list of pre-nuptial courtesies honoring Miss Welsh will be the luncheon and bridal shower to be held Saturday afternoon at the Lincoln Hotel by office co-workers of the bride-elect.

On Sunday morning, Miss Welsh will share honors with her fiancé at a brunch and shower to be held at the Floyd Breckenridge cabin at Wilber. Hostesses will be Mrs. Breckenridge, Mrs. Elmer Dudgeon and Mrs. Cee Heller.

Mr. and Mrs. Welsh will honor their daughter and her fiancé on Friday evening, Aug. 23, when they will entertain at a pre-nuptial dinner to be held at the Nebraska Center. The guest list will include members of the family and bridal party, and out-of-town guests will include Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Molden of Berwyn, Ill.

Included among recent courtesies honoring Miss Welsh was the personal shower held Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Carol Ramer. Assisting Miss Ramer as hostesses were Judy Andrus and Miss Karla Shaffer.

A late summer bride-elect who was honored on Thursday evening is Miss Jerri Ann Olson, whose marriage to Henry Poppe will take place on Friday, Aug. 23.

Honoring the bride-to-be at a dessert-supper at Hillcrest Country Club were Mrs. Harvey Kaufman, Mrs. Irv Vosta and Mrs. Roy Vermaas. During the informal evening, a kitchen and gadget shower was presented to the honoree.

Last Sunday, a grocery shower was presented to Miss Olson at a party for which Miss Minnie Riege, Miss Ella Riege, Mrs. Hilda Riege and Mrs. Anna Poppe were hostesses at Syracuse.

Also entertaining recently for Miss Poppe was Mrs. Duane Hunt who was hostess to 28 guests at a personal shower held at her home.

Among the out-of-town guests, who are expected to arrive next week, to attend the wedding, which will take place at 8 o'clock in the evening at Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, are Mr. and Mrs. George Christensen and Lauris of Bethesda, Md.; Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Olson of Maitland, Fla.; and from Grand Island, Mrs. Tom Christensen and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Christensen and families.

FUN NEWS IN SUBURBIA

MEADOW LANE

The welcome mats in Meadow Lane are bright and shining this week — not only for the friends and relatives who are arriving, but because there are several new faces in the neighborhood.

There seems to be a number of changes in the area — changes of addresses that is, for we have several new families that are now at home in this attractive suburban section.

Honoring one of the newcomers to the Meadow Lane area this evening will be Mrs. Ronald Hazard and Mrs. W. C. Fischer who will be hostesses at an evening coffee to which a group of neighbors has been invited.

The guest of honor will be Mrs. Darrel McClatchey who, with Mr. McClatchey and their sons Mark and Greg, moved into Meadow Lane as of two weeks ago.

Celebrating her sixth anniversary on Wednesday, Aug. 14, was Miss Susan Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hill, who entertained seven of her friends at an afternoon picnic at Pioneers Park.

Susan's guests for the afternoon were Holly and Vicki Elias, Cindy Farmer, Cindy Davies, Stephanie Bedell, Mike Eschler and his brother, Robert.

guests, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Tolstedt.

There seemed to be no worries concerning entertainment, for Mr. Tolstedt and Mr. Beckenbach spent one afternoon at the Hillcrest Country Club viewing the golf tournament between Gary Player and Arnold Palmer.

The following evening the foursome motored to Omaha to view Cinerama.

There are five small faces in the Meadow Lane area that have disappeared—just for a week. Donnie, Debbie, Dixie, Diana and Denise Kaelin, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kaelin, have been visiting with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Kaelin in Ansley since last weekend.

The children will be returning this Sunday when their parents and their little brother, Douglas, will be meeting them in Grand Island to accompany them home.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Kitrell for an evening of bridge last Friday were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Schneider and Mr. and Mrs. Gar Donaldson. This, however, was not the end of the entertainment at the Kitrell home for on Saturday evening they had as their dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. George Opp.

The moving vans have been getting a work out in the Meadow Lane area for in addition to the moving-in (the McClatcheys) we have news of a moving-out in the neighborhood.

The moving date for the Johnson family was on Aug. 7.

Last Sunday, a grocery shower was presented to Miss Olson at a party for which Miss Minnie Riege, Miss Ella Riege, Mrs. Hilda Riege and Mrs. Anna Poppe were hostesses at Syracuse.

Also entertaining recently for Miss Poppe was Mrs. Duane Hunt who was hostess to 28 guests at a personal shower held at her home.

Among the out-of-town guests, who are expected to arrive next week, to attend the wedding, which will take place at 8 o'clock in the evening at Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, are Mr. and Mrs. George Christensen and Lauris of Bethesda, Md.; Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Olson of Maitland, Fla.; and from Grand Island, Mrs. Tom Christensen and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Christensen and families.

FUN NEWS IN SUBURBIA

MEADOW LANE

The welcome mats in Meadow Lane are bright and shining this week — not only for the friends and relatives who are arriving, but because there are several new faces in the neighborhood.

There seems to be a number of changes in the area — changes of addresses that is, for we have several new families that are now at home in this attractive suburban section.

Honoring one of the newcomers to the Meadow Lane area this evening will be Mrs. Ronald Hazard and Mrs. W. C. Fischer who will be hostesses at an evening coffee to which a group of neighbors has been invited.

The guest of honor will be Mrs. Darrel McClatchey who, with Mr. McClatchey and their sons Mark and Greg, moved into Meadow Lane as of two weeks ago.

Celebrating her sixth anniversary on Wednesday, Aug. 14, was Miss Susan Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hill, who entertained seven of her friends at an afternoon picnic at Pioneers Park.

Susan's guests for the afternoon were Holly and Vicki Elias, Cindy Farmer, Cindy Davies, Stephanie Bedell, Mike Eschler and his brother, Robert.

guests, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Tolsted.

There seemed to be no worries concerning entertainment, for Mr. Tolsted and Mr. Beckenbach spent one afternoon at the Hillcrest Country Club viewing the golf tournament between Gary Player and Arnold Palmer.

The following evening the foursome motored to Omaha to view Cinerama.

There are five small faces in the Meadow Lane area that have disappeared — just for a week. Donnie, Debbie, Dixie, Diana and Denise Kaelin, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kaelin, have been visiting with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Kaelin in Ansley since last weekend.

The children will be returning this Sunday when their parents and their little brother, Douglas, will be meeting them in Grand Island to accompany them home.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Kitrell for an evening of bridge last Friday were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Schneider and Mr. and Mrs. Gar Donaldson. This, however, was not the end of the entertainment at the Kitrell home for on Saturday evening they had as their dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. George Opp.

The moving vans have been getting a work out in the Meadow Lane area for in addition to the moving-in (the McClatcheys) we have news of a moving-out in the neighborhood.

Dr. and Mrs. Marvin Johnson and children, Linda, Terry, Kim and Carey, have left their former residence on Carlos Drive and have placed their welcome sign on their new home on North Seventy-ninth Street.

The moving date for the Johnson family was on Aug. 7.

Partner bids One Diamond, next player passes. Neither side is vulnerable and you have a part score of 60. What would you now bid with each of the following five hands?

- 1. ♠AJ6 ♥K542 ♦Q73 ♣AQ8
- 2. ♠K85 ♥K73 ♦J4 ♣A9642
- 3. ♠972 ♥83 ♦KQ64 ♣AKQ5
- 4. ♠743 ♥Q984 ♦8 ♣Q9653
- 5. ♠A3 ♥AJ6 ♦Q964 ♣AK72

1. Two notrump. Without the part score, the proper response would be three notrump, showing 16 or 17 points and a notrump type of hand, but with the part score, similar values can be shown by jumping to only two notrump. Since a one notrump response would be a game bid with a part score of 60, the jump to two notrump constitutes a slam try. The bid is not forcing and partner may pass. The jump shows 15 to 17 points, provided the part score is 60 or more.

2. One notrump. Without the part score, two clubs would be the normal response, but with it, one notrump is the preferable bid. The reason is that two clubs is not forcing and partner is at liberty to pass, and we therefore should avoid the risk of playing an eight-trick contract with such a weak trump suit. One notrump is undoubtedly a safe contract if partner accepts it, since we have 11 high-card points facing an opening bid.

3. Three diamonds. Since two diamonds would be a game bid, the jump to three diamonds—one beyond game—constitutes a slam invitation. The bid is not forcing.

It merely announces the possibility of a slam if partner has substantially more than a minimum opening bid. Usually the jump raise beyond the game level shows approximately the minimum values for an opening bid.

4. One heart. Without the part score, the best response would be a pass, but with it, it is better to keep game possibilities open by responding in some way, even with only 4 high-card points. The choice lies between one heart and one notrump, and, of these two, the preferable response is one heart. Low contracts with poor hands generally are safer in a suit than in notrump.

5. Three clubs. A small slam in diamonds is virtually assured, and the best way of investigating grand slam possibilities is by making a jump-shift. Note that a jump-shift shows unlimited values and is 100% forcing, as distinguished from a jump raise, which is merely an invitational bid. The plan is to jump to six diamonds on the next round if partner shows lack of interest in a slam by bidding three diamonds or three notrump.

Dear Abby

The Bride's Family Pays For The Wedding

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to blow off a little steam about the ridiculous practice of businesses that give kiddies candy suckers when they come in with their mothers. I find myself avoiding the places where this is done. I don't know of one mother who approves of it. If she refuses to let the child accept the sucker, she is "mean". If she accepts it, she is building her child's dental bill and spoiling the child's appetite for the next meal. Doctors, believe it or not, are among the worst offenders. Banks, grocery stores and shoe stores run a close second.

IRATE MOTHER

DEAR IRATE: Telephone (or write a note) to the "offenders" and suggest they give out balloons instead. But don't hold your breath.

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married soon and many problems have come up. My family is small. My future husband comes from a very large family. His mother gave my mother a list of 66 "close relatives" she wants invited to the wedding supper. My father says he is willing to pay for OUR side of the family, but he is not feeding 66 strangers. Abby, how can I tell my future-in-laws this? I am even ashamed to tell my boy friend.

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: Tell your father that the bride's family pays for the wedding. If a wedding supper is too costly for your father, have a reception instead. It's nothing to be ashamed of.

DEAR ABBY: People are always so reluctant to take a loved one with a mental disorder to a psychiatrist for treatment. If they only realized what an injustice they are doing to that person! With all the wonderful drugs and treatments they have today, there's no reason for mental cases to go on living miserable lives when they could be normal and happy. Believe me, I know because we had it in our family. Mental illness sometimes takes on strange forms and is hard to recognize as such. Then, too, some people refuse to accept the truth and will admit to anything but a mental illness. I only wish we had taken the step sooner. It would have saved us all a lot of unhappiness. Please pass this on to your readers, Abby.

In celebration of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hall their sons-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Dockhorn and Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Baillie, will entertain on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dockhorn. Members of the family have been invited for a barbecue.

Why Grow Old?

Age Is Relative

Josephine Lowman

The American Medical Association's committee on aging has come up with some very cheering news. Surveys and studies have shown that aging need not necessarily bring infirmities. It is possible for a healthy man or woman in later years to be just as alert and more active than one who is years younger. Individuals vary greatly in these matters.

It was learned that about 4/5ths of the people in the United States past 65 are able to live independently in rooms or houses in ordinary neighborhoods. One recent survey has shown that a little more than 90 per cent of men past 60 and almost 88 per cent of women in that age group are in average good health.

And guess what? Studies have indicated that mental capacities do not decline just because of years. Older people are good learners. The conclusion that stress is preferable to inactivity and boredom is clear-cut. This committee urges employers to keep persons on the payroll who are able to work and want to work, regardless of age and to employ new workers who are capable regardless of their age.

The other day I read an interesting article in "Geriatrics" magazine. Its author is Dr. Victor Kassel, Chief, Geriatrics Unit, Fort Douglas Veterans Hospital, and Consulting Geriatrician, Salt Lake County General Hospital, Salt Lake City, Utah.

He emphasizes that most people just take it for granted that their mental powers will decrease with age. For this reason many older persons have talents and capabilities of which they are unaware. They allow them to lie dormant. He warns, however, that if a person is to be alert and capable in later years he must indulge in intellectual pursuits during the preceding years. It is his belief that after we reach 40 we should learn a new language every decade. It think that's a wonderful idea!

Dr. Kassel spotlights the importance of preparing for vibrant older years. Naturally, part of the time during younger years must be spent in making a living. He advises, though that habitually, we spend some time in physical activity, creative activity and intellectual activity. With life expectancy so greatly lengthened, it is imperative that we prepare so that these extra years may be a bonus rather than a bore.

If you would like to have my free leaflet "Pep" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet number 56 to Josephine Lowman in care of the Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Neb.

We were treating ourselves to a "movie"—the first in many months. My husband bought the tickets and as we were getting seated, he whispered in my ear, "Oh, boy! The cashier gave me change for a TEN, and I only gave her a one!" I turned to him and said, "Is your integrity worth only nine dollars?" He walked back, called the cashier's attention to her error and returned to me. Then he squeezed my hand and said, "Thank you, dear. I needed that lesson."

Touchdowns For Kids

When members of the North and South High School Shrine football squads and their coaches trot on the field Saturday afternoon for the 5th annual Nebraska Shrine Bowl Game, they not only will be carrying the thought of a game victory in their minds, but also the thought of victory for the children in a Minneapolis hospital.

For that is the purpose of staging the game. It is played for the 60 or so children hospitalized at Minneapolis.

When Larry Wacholtz or any of the North backs streak over the goal line for a touchdown, they will be doing it for that boy in Minneapolis who will never be able to run because nature gave him a bad pair of legs or no legs at all.

And when Wayne Weber of the South squad sends a TD pass skyward, he will be acting for another boy in that Minneapolis hospital who will never be able to throw a football.

When any lineman on either team makes a jarring tackle it will be made for the girl who is flat on her back because of a congenital deformity.

Some Thrills Missing

These high school football players will be staging a contest to benefit the child who has to lie in a crib with plaster of paris instead of legs, with wheel chairs instead of roller skates.

Most of the deformities afflicting these children are congenital. The boys don't know the scare connected with hitting a baseball through the neighbor's window, have never waded through the mud puddle left by a recent rain, have never raced a tricycle down the sidewalk or romped on the lawn with a puppy. The girls haven't been able to help Momma with the dishes or with the housecleaning.

The sad part about these children is that they are not sick children. They generally have clear minds. Most of them also have clear hearts, lungs, livers and other vital organs. They know they are not the same as your healthy boy or girl. They cannot do many of the things that other youngsters their age are doing.

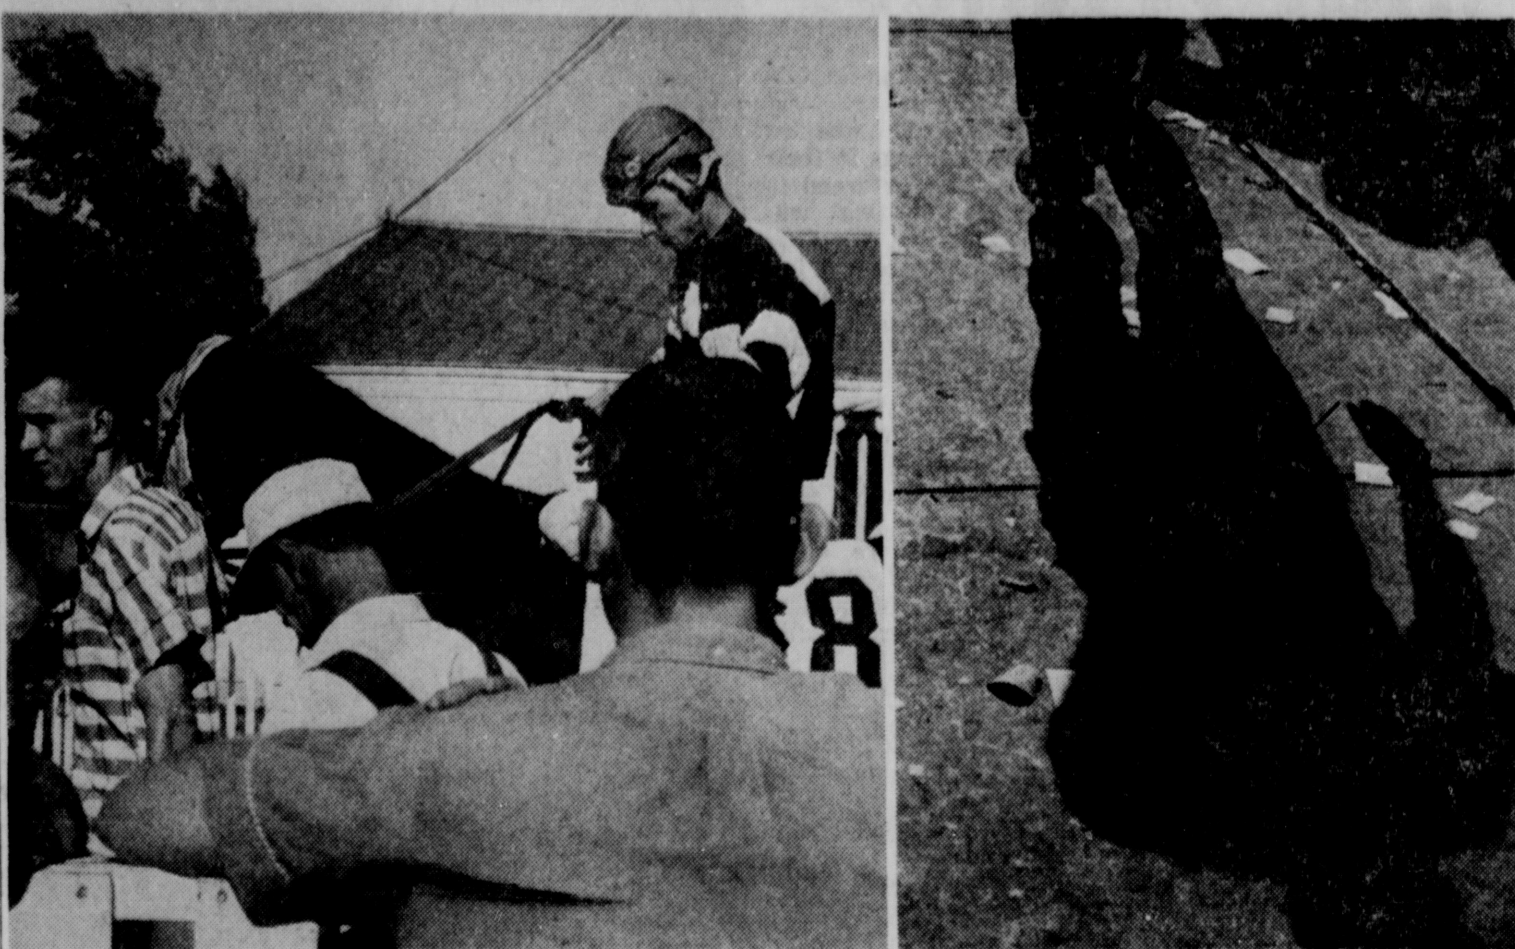

But there are many things they can do. They can cry. They can laugh. They must make the most of what nature has done to them. They have many occasions to cry and a few times they have cause for laughter.

Know Why Game Is Played

One of the children's happiest moments comes each summer when these high school players, who will be on the Memorial Stadium gridiron Saturday, visit the hospital. This is one of the year's biggest thrills for the youngsters.

It also, as one coach explained, shows the players why they are playing the game. It shows the players why they have given up two to three weeks of their summer, why they have given up jobs that could have earned them spending money for the coming school year.

All Nebraskans should be proud of the band of high school football players who will be performing Saturday at Memorial Stadium.

Both Track Records Fall ... AS FAIRGROUNDS RACE MEET CONCLUDES

A torrid final week at the Lincoln Fairgrounds race meeting erased early slumps in betting and attendance and brought about records in both events.

Thursday's crowd of 5,495 boosted the total 1963 attendance figure to 77,700 — an increase of 1,833 over 1962.

The $3,657,795 handle erased the former record of $3,587,760, also set in 1962.

This represents a tremendous comeback on the part of the patrons. Just a week ago

Wes Ellis Fires 66 For Insurance Lead

Hartford, Conn. (AP) — Wes Ellis of West Caldwell, N.J., shot a 5-under-par 66 Thursday for the opening day lead in the $40,000 Insurance City Open Golf Tournament, but he can't afford to rest comfortably.

Right behind him were Bill Casper of Apple Valley, Calif., back of the PGA circuit after a 3-month lapse because of an injured left hand, and Jerry Pittman of Tulsa, Okla. Casper posted a 67, and Pittman a 68.

While 27 in the field of 150 shattered par on the 35-36-71 Wethersfield Country Club Course, two of the nation's top pros, Jack Nicklaus and Julius Boros, came in with mediocre performances for them.

Nicklaus, the PGA and Master's champion, shot a 73.

Boros, U.S. Open titleholder from Connecticut, posted a 74.

The 23-year-old Nicklaus joked about his round after he had finished. He said the 6,515-yard layout offered no advantage for his long shots, and that he should not be a favorite to win this 72-hole tournament.

Trial Testimony Finished; Wally Butts Final Witness

Atlanta (AP) — Testimony was completed Thursday in the trial of Wally Butts' $10 million libel suit against Curtis Publishing Co. because of a Post article charging that day of the trial which resulted from a Saturday Evening Post article charging that Butts and coach Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama rigged last fall's Alabama-Georgia game. The stocky Butts, who led the Georgia Bulldogs to their first bowl game, returned to the stand as the final witness.

His attorney asked him about testimony of university officials who had said Butts' character was bad. Butts was asked if the testimony he had given, denying the charges, was the truth.

"The Truth" Butts replied.

After several more questions about football, Butts stepped down and his attorney, William H. Schroder Jr., announced quietly:

"That is our case, your honor."

Welborn B. Cody, chief counsel for Curtis, stood and said:

"And we have completed ours, your honor."

Closing Words Judge Lewis R. Morgan said each side would be allowed two hours for closing arguments and it was agreed that part of the argument will be given Friday and the remainder on Monday when Judge Morgan will issue his charge and leave the case with the jury.

Testimony of a Chicago beer distributor, Frank Scoby, was read to the jury Thursday. Scoby's testimony was taken last month in Chicago.

No Info Scoby said he had been heavily on football games 6 years ago but never received inside team information from Butts.

Pitching Baseball Weber has been pitching baseball this summer for Rapid City, S.D. He came to Columbia Thursday to talk football with Dan Devine.

"It was the hardest decision I've had to make," he said.

"Our relationship has been very close," said Devine, "and I feel extremely bad that the injuries prevented him from having the brilliant football career we predicted for him 3 years ago."

Devine said Weber will continue on an athletic scholarship. He has two more years of baseball eligibility.

Quarterback already was a problem spot for Missouri this year but the coaching staff evidently was not counting too much on Weber. The top prospects are Mike Jones, a junior from Kennett, Mo., who saw limited action last year, and Gary Lane, a sophomore from East Alton, Ill.

Keith Weber Quits Football

... BAD KNEES PROMPT MISSOURI QB'S DECISION

Columbia, Mo. (AP) — Keith Weber, touted in advance as the greatest quarterback Missouri would ever have, called it quits on football Thursday because he has run out of knees.

The 21-year-old flash from Jefferson City, Mo., said he has high hopes of landing with a major league baseball club and doesn't want to endanger his chances with more knee injuries.

His righthanded pitches brought him a 7-0 record with the Tiger baseball club last season and he plans to be out for baseball in the spring. He said the St. Louis Cardinals are among the teams which have asked him for a chance to bid when and if he decides to sign a pro contract.

6 Minutes Weber played the first 6 minutes of Missouri's opening football game in 1961, when he was a sophomore, and left the field with a knee injury that required surgery.

He was just getting back into shape when he hurt the other knee playing baseball.

The Big 8 decided Weber's was a hardship case and did not count his 6 football minutes against his 3 years of eligibility.

He played some in each of Missouri's first 6 football games last fall but it was obvious the knee injuries were holding him back. In the 7th game against Nebraska, he hurt the baseball-injured knee again and had to have another operation.

Davenport, Mays Lead Giants Past Reds, 6-3

Cincinnati (AP) — A key bunt single by streaking Jim Davenport and Willie Mays' two-run single in a 4-run 5th inning carried the second-place San Francisco Giants to a 6-3 triumph over 4th-place Cincinnati Thursday night.

Mays who drove in the winning runs, also made a leaping one-handed catch at the scoreboard of Don Pavletich's drive with one on in the 8th inning.

In the decisive 5th, Harvey Kuenn drove in the first run with a single before Davenport dropped a bunt toward 3rd and beat it out to load the bases. It was his 3rd hit of the game and his 5th straight.

Joe Nuxhall then hit Willie McCovey with a pitch, forcing in a run, and Mays wrapped it up with his single through short.

PIRATES BASH METS BY 8-2

New York (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates lashed out 12 hits, including a two-run single by pitcher Don Cardwell that broke a tie, and whipped the New York Mets, 8-2, Thursday night.

Cardwell, winning his 10th against 12 defeats, fell behind in the second inning when losing pitcher Galen Cisco rapped a grounder with the bases loaded that hopped over the head of shortstop Johnny Logan for two-run single.

Cardwell got even in the 4th as the Pirates put the game out of reach with 4 runs.

Twins Crack Orioles, 13-3

Minneapolis-St. Paul (AP) — Rookie Jimmie Hall slashed 3 hits, including his 20th home run, and drove in 5 runs to support Lee Stange's 9-hit pitching as Minnesota crushed Baltimore, 13-3, Thursday night.

Hall's homer total matched the club record for a left-handed batter, set by Mickey Vernon in 1954 when the team was in Washington.

Other key Twins' blows were Hall's two-run single in the 6th, and solo homers by Don Mincher in the second and Bob Allison in the 7th. It was Mincher's 13th, Allison's 26th.

Bateman's Homer Lifts Colts Past Cards, 4-2

St. Louis (AP) — John Bateman's 3-run homer in the first inning carried Houston to a 4-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Thursday night.

The triumph ended a Colt losing streak at 6 games and shoved the 3rd-place Cardinals 5 games behind National League leaders Los Angeles.

Colt starter Don Nottbart scattered 7 hits in 8 1/3 innings and worked out of two jams to raise his record to 7-5 with relief help in the 9th from Hal Woodeshick.

Nottbart retired the first 13 men he faced before Ken Boyer hit his 15th home run, in the 5th. The Cardinals then loaded the bases on two hits and an error, but Nottbart got Gary Kolb and Curt Flood on infield grounders.

HOUSTON

Trial Testimony Finished; Wally Butts Final Witness

Atlanta (AP) — Testimony was completed Thursday in the trial of Wally Butts' $10 million libel suit against Curtis Publishing Co. because of a Post article charging that day of the trial which resulted from a Saturday Evening Post article charging that Butts and coach Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama rigged

Butts helped rig a football game. Closing arguments by attorneys were set for Friday and Monday. The climax came at the 9th

last fall's Alabama-Georgia game. The stocky Butts, who led the Georgia Bulldogs to their first bowl game, returned to the stand as the final witness.

His attorney asked him about testimony of university officials who had said Butts' character was bad. Butts was asked if the testimony he had given, denying the charges, was the truth.

"The Truth" Butts replied. "That is the truth, sir," Butts replied. After several more questions about football, Butts stepped down and his attorney, William H. Schroder Jr., announced quietly:

"That is our case, your honor." "We have completed ours, your honor."

Closing Words Judge Lewis R. Morgan said each side would be allowed two hours for closing arguments and it was agreed that part of the argument will be given Friday and the remainder on Monday when Judge Morgan will issue his charge and leave the case with the jury.

Testimony of a Chicago beer distributor, Frank Scoby, was read to the jury Thursday. Scoby's testimony was taken last month in Chicago.

No Info Scoby said he had bet heavily on football games 6 years ago but never received inside team information from Butts.

Keith Weber Quits Football

... BAD KNEES PROMPT MIZZOU QB'S DECISION

Columbia, Mo. (AP) — Keith Weber, touted in advance as the greatest quarterback Missouri would ever have, called it quits on football Thursday because he has run out of knees.

The 21-year-old flash from Jefferson City, Mo., said he has high hopes of landing with a major league baseball club and doesn't want to endanger his chances with more knee injuries.

His righthanded pitches brought him a 7-0 record with the Tiger baseball club last season and he plans to be out for baseball in the spring. He said the St. Louis Cardinals are among the teams which have asked him for a chance to bid when and if he decides to sign a pro contract.

6 Minutes Weber played the first 6 minutes of Missouri's opening football game in 1961, when he was a sophomore, and left the field with a knee injury that required surgery.

He was just getting back into shape when he hurt the other knee playing baseball. The Big 8 decided Weber's was a hardship case and did not count his 6 football minutes against his 3 years of eligibility.

He played some in each of Missouri's first 6 football games last fall but it was obvious the knee injuries were holding him back. In the 7th game against Nebraska, he hurt the baseball-injured knee again and had to have another operation.

Pitching Baseball Weber has been pitching baseball this summer for Rapid City, S.D. He came to Columbia Thursday to talk football with Dan Devine.

"It was the hardest decision I've had to make," he said. "Our relationship has been very close," said Devine, "and I feel extremely bad that the injuries prevented him from having the brilliant football career we predicted for him 3 years ago."

Devine said Weber will continue on an athletic scholarship. He has two more years of baseball eligibility. Quarterback already was a problem spot for Missouri this year but the coaching staff evidently was not counting too much on Weber. The top prospects are Mike Jones, a junior from Kennett, Mo., who saw limited action last year, and Gary Lane, a sophomore from East Alton, Ill.

Davenport, Mays Lead Giants Past Reds, 6-3

Cincinnati (AP) — A key bunt single by streaking Jim Davenport and Willie Mays' two-run single in a 4-run 5th inning carried the second-place San Francisco Giants to a 6-3 triumph over 4th-place Cincinnati Thursday night.

Mays who drove in the winning runs, also made a leaping one-handed catch at the scoreboard of Don Pavletich's drive with one on in the 8th inning.

In the decisive 5th, Harvey Kuenn drove in the first run with a single before Davenport dropped a bunt toward 3rd and beat it out to load the bases. It was his 3rd hit of the game and his 5th straight.

Joe Nuxhall then hit Willie McCovey with a pitch, forcing in a run, and Mays wrapped it up with his single through short.

PIRATES BASH METS BY 8-2

New York (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates lashed out 12 hits, including a two-run single by pitcher Don Cardwell that broke a tie, and whipped the New York Mets, 8-2, Thursday night.

Cardwell, winning his 10th against 12 defeats, fell behind in the second inning when losing pitcher Galen Cisco rapped a grounder with the bases loaded that hopped over the head of shortstop Johnny Logan for two-run single.

Cardwell got even in the 4th as the Pirates put the game out of reach with 4 runs.

Twins Crack Orioles, 13-3

Minneapolis-St. Paul (AP) — Rookie Jimmie Hall slashed 3 hits, including his 20th home run, and drove in 5 runs to support Lee Stange's 9-hit pitching as Minnesota crushed Baltimore, 13-3, Thursday night.

Hall's homer total matched the club record for a left-handed batter, set by Mickey Vernon in 1954 when the team was in Washington. Other key Twins' blows were Hall's two-run single in the 6th, and solo homers by Don Mincher in the second and Bob Allison in the 7th. It was Mincher's 13th, Allison's 26th.

Phils Vault Into 5th By Defeating Cubs

Philadelphia (AP) — Tony Taylor's two-run triple and a run-producing double by Johnny Callison highlighted a 4-run 7th inning uprising that gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs Thursday night. The triumph, the Phillies 3rd straight come from behind decision over the Cubs, hopped Philadelphia over Chicago into 5th place in the tight National League pennant race.

Monday Deadline For NU Tickets

... THEN OFFICE WILL CLOSE WEEK

University of Nebraska ticket manager Jim Pittenger Thursday issued another reminder that deadline for picking up 1963 season football tickets is Monday, Aug. 19. Following the deadline, Pittenger said the NU ticket office would be closed for one week to "dig out."

"We've had a very busy summer," Pittenger said. "We'll take a week to see exactly where we stand in regard to football tickets."

Pittenger said that by last Monday "we have already received money and issued more tickets than we did last year."

The Husker ticket manager said season ticket orders are "over 15,000," compared to 10,000-plus in 1962. He earlier had reported that requests for season and single game tickets indicate the Cornhuskers will be sold out for all home games with the exception of the South Dakota State opener, Sept. 13.

"We do have stadium seats remaining for South Dakota State," Pittenger said. "And bleacher tickets will be available. Also, we will have a Knothole Section for every game except Band Day."

Tigers Blast Athletics, 11-1

Kansas City (AP) — Six singles, a walk and an error added up to a 7-run 4th inning for the Detroit Tigers and sent them surging to a 11-1 victory over the Kansas City Athletics Thursday.

The Tigers had 15 hits and the Athletics 8 but there were only two extra base hits, both of them doubles. Bill Bruton, Don Wert and Dick McAuliffe all had 3 hits apiece for the Tigers.

Hank Aguirre went all the way for Detroit and squared his record at 11-11.

Basin Officials Miffed By Temple's Criticism

Pierre, S.D. (UPI) — Basin League officials took sharp issue with statements by Valentine, Neb., Hearts manager Floyd Temple, blasting the operation of the baseball league.

Temple's team finished only 5 percentage points off the pace when Sturgis and Pierre forfeited rained-out games with the pennant-winning Winner Pheasants.

League president Gordon Stout and secretary-treasurer Bob Leonard said in a statement to United Press International, "In reply to the blast of Valentine Hearts ball club manager Floyd Temple, we only have this to say . . . As officers of the Basin League and as charter members, we do not at all appreciate his advice or insinuations."

Temple, who is also a University of Kansas coach, said the playoffs currently being played by the top 4 teams in the 5-team league are a "farce" and don't prove a thing.

Stout and Leonard said "the playoffs were arranged by a poll of the board members. With economy as the watchword which it must be if we are to keep our league alive, it was decided to forfeit the remaining unplayed games so no club would have to stand by with a $300-a-day expense."

On another subject, Leonard said things look pretty good for the expansion of the league to 8 teams next year — if the league can keep its National Collegiate Athletic Association sanctions.

Leonard said Sioux Falls, Mitchell and Huron are potential additions to the league.

Leonard called the present 5-team arrangement "a very bad thing."

Eagles Acquire Two

Philadelphia (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League Thursday acquired Dave Lloyd, a 248-pound center-linebacker, and Dick Mills, an offensive guard from the Detroit Lions for a future draft choice.

Clinical Progress Reports

Longer Lasting Medication for Painless Home Treatment of Hemorrhoids

M.P.O. combines fast-acting ingredients in a prescription-type formula to relieve pain and itch—shrink piles.

Doctors have reported "We are quite pleased with the results." In recent clinical tests of Mentholum M.P.O., results were good to excellent for 25 out of 30 patients. Relief starts in seconds—M.P.O. contains more medically accepted pain-relieving ingredients than the leading hemorrhoid preparation. And M.P.O. is homogenized for faster absorption of its relief-bringing medication. The instant you apply M.P.O., its anesthetic (Benzocaine) and vasoconstrictor (Ephedrine Sulfate) start to work.

Longer lasting relief—because M.P.O.'s formula has an exclusive stabilized base, the medication is concentrated on the inflamed tissue to keep on working. And it includes Hexachlorophene, the famous germ killer, to relieve bacteria-caused itching and fight possible infection.

Get Mentholum M.P.O. today. Sold without prescription at all drug counters.

Monday Deadline For NU Tickets

... THEN OFFICE WILL CLOSE WEEK

University of Nebraska ticket manager Jim Pittenger Thursday issued another reminder that deadline for picking up 1963 season football tickets is Monday, Aug. 19.

Following the deadline, Pittenger said the NU ticket office would be closed for one week to "dig out."

"We've had a very busy summer," Pittenger said. "We'll take a week to see exactly where we stand in regard to football tickets."

Pittenger said that by last Monday "we have already received money and issued more tickets than we did all last year."

The Husker ticket manager said season ticket orders are "over 15,000" compared to 10,000-plus in 1962. He earlier had reported that requests for season and single game tickets indicate the Cornhuskers will be sold out for all home games with the exception of the South Dakota State opener, Sept. 13.

"We do have stadium seats remaining for South Dakota State," Pittenger said. "And bleacher tickets will be available. Also, we will have a Knott's Section for every game except Band Day."

Get Life Suspension

London (AP) — The English Football Association suspended 3 English League players for life Thursday following their conviction of accepting bribes to fix games.

Tigers Blast Athletics, 11-1

Kansas City (AP) — Six singles, a walk and an error added up to a 7-run 4th inning for the Detroit Tigers and sent them surging to a 11-1 victory over the Kansas City Athletics Thursday.

The Tigers had 15 hits and the Athletics 8 but there were only two extra base hits, both of them doubles. Bill Bruton, Don Wert and Dick McAuliffe all had 3 hits apiece for the Tigers.

Hank Aguirre went all the way for Detroit and squared his record at 11-11.

Basin Officials Miffed By Temple's Criticism

Pierre, S.D. (UPI) — Basin League officials took sharp issue with statements by Valentine, Neb., Hearts manager Floyd Temple, blasting the operation of the baseball league.

Temple's team finished only 5 percentage points off the pace when Sturgis and Pierre forfeited rained-out games with the pennant-winning Winnebago Pheasants.

League president Gordon Stout and secretary-treasurer Bob Leonard said in a statement to United Press International, "In reply to the blast of Valentine Hearts ball club manager Floyd Temple, we only have this to say . . . As officers of the Basin League and as charter members, we do not at all appreciate his advice or insinuations."

Temple, who is also a University of Kansas coach, said the playoffs currently being played by the top 4 teams in the 5-team league are a "farce" and don't prove a thing.

Stout and Leonard said "the playoffs were arranged by a poll of the board members. With economy as the watchword which it must be if we are to keep our league alive, it was decided to forfeit the remaining unplayed games so no club would have to stand by with a $300-a-day expense."

On another subject, Leonard said things look pretty good for the expansion of the league to 8 teams next year — if the league can keep its National Collegiate Athletic Association sanctions.

Leonard said Sioux Falls, Mitchell and Huron are potential additions to the league.

Leonard called the present 5-team arrangement "a very bad thing."

Clinical Progress Report

Longer Lasting Medication for Painless Home Treatment of Hemorrhoids

M.P.O. combines fast-acting ingredients in a prescription-type formula to relieve pain and itch—shrink piles.

Doctors have reported "We are quite pleased with the results." In recent clinical tests of Mentholatum M.P.O., results were good to excellent for 25 out of 30 patients. Relief starts in seconds—M.P.O. contains more medically accepted pain-relieving ingredients than the leading hemorrhoid preparation. And M.P.O. is homogenized for faster absorption of its relief-bringing medication. The instant you apply M.P.O., its anesthetic (Benzocaine) and vasoconstrictor (Ephedrine Sulfate) start to work.

Longer lasting relief—because M.P.O.'s formula has an exclusive stabilized base, the medication is concentrated on the inflamed tissue to keep on working. And it includes Hexachlorophene, the famous germ killer, to relieve bacteria-caused itching and fight possible infection.

Get Mentholatum M.P.O. today. Sold without prescription at all drug counters.

M.P.O. is available in stainless ointment or suppository form.

I checked into the plush Dorado Beach Hotel. It is not far from the Rio de la Plata (the Spanish explorers named everything rich, silver or gold, it sounded good in the letters home).

In 1508, Juan Ponce de Leon sailed up the river. He saw it was excellent country. It was held by Carib Indians. But in those golden days of Spain, you took care of that by explaining that Carlos V was the Holy Roman Emperor. And land development was the will of God.

The Spanish wrapped the town in stone walls. Thick fortresses with bronze cannon pointed toward the sea.

They called the island San Juan and the town Puerto Rico. (Somehow during the years, the town has become

ANGEL

By Mel Casson

"I wear the top part to keep me warm."

San Juan and the island is Puerto Rico.)

They built holy churches—always treasure house targets for the Dutch and English. They went to different churches and therefore felt a solemn satisfaction in robbing the opposition.

They put the Indians to work building homes and convents where cooling winds blew through shady patios. They paved old San Juan with a blue glazed brick which you still walk on.

Juan Ponce de Leon looked for the Fountain of Youth in Florida. He failed to find it. Died and was buried in the old San Jose church. But he is now removed (in 1908) to a marble crypt in the Cathedral.

(Spanish explorers are moved more when they are dead than they did in their lifetime. Columbus is buried in three glorious tombs. He didn't know the world was that round.)

Puerto Ricans became American citizens in 1917. We took the island from Spain in 1898.

It became a commonwealth, "freely associated" with the United States, in 1952.

It was just in time for the big tourist boom around the world.

Mainland Americans are delighted to find an island where the language and culture is Spanish. But you use American dollars.

One of the nicest things about democracy is you can drink the water.

Naturally, we can see this is a great improvement over the sleepy Spanish days. Nothing like air-conditioning to improve the tropics.

Tourists come here in great numbers. Though the multi-million dollar hotels wish they would come even more.

What they really want is to have them come in the summer.

The Caribbean draws heavily from the Eastern seaboard of the U.S. And New Yorkers are convinced — (sitting in sweltering 90 degrees summers) — that it is too hot here.

Actually, the weather gets about 85 high degrees. And if you avoid the mid-afternoon, get in a cool interior, the day goes like money from home.

Mornings are a sunny delight. And evenings, when the sun plunges into the sea showering the sky with Spanish gold, is enough to make you weep when the day comes up on your return ticket.

To pull the reluctant North American here during the summer, the island offers all sorts of attractive rates.

Room and food rates fall from 25 to 50% in the bargain months between May and November 15.

Consequently, hotel occupancy is doing quite well — it's up to about 70 percent.

The closing of popular Cuba and political troubles in Haiti and the Dominican Republic haven't hurt Puerto Rico either.

You can't go to Cuba. And there's something discouraging about going to islands where you don't know whether the buzz is a bee or a bullet.

You don't have to think about that in Puerto Rico. Another thing, they say on the brochures that it's the rum capital of the world — green sugar cane waves from one end to the other, 100 miles of it.

And, of course, the ice, like the water, is perfectly safe.

Candidates For Most Offices Can Still Pay Smaller Filing Fee

It's still not too late for candidates for Congress, statewide or county offices to file for those offices and save themselves some money, according to an attorney general's opinion released Thursday.

Prospective state senators and those seeking re-election aren't so lucky, however.

According to the opinion, candidates for such offices as governor, county treasurer and U.S. Senate can pay the present nominal filing fee up to Oct. 19. But on that day, LB540, which sets the filing fee at 1% of the annual salary for the office sought, will take effect.

The opinion said candidates for the State Legislature will have to pay the new 1% fee because none can legally file before Oct. 19, the day the legislative reapportionment bill becomes effective.

The opinion, written by Deputy Atty. Gen. Gerald Vitamvas and approved by Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer noted the Nebraska Supreme Court some years ago ruled a law similar to LB540 unconstitutional.

In that case, however, the fee was 1% of the salary for the term of office rather than a year as in the new law.

"However, in view of the presumption of constitutionality of duly enacted legislation, we express no opinion as to the reasonableness of the prescribed fees," the opinion said.

Secretary of State Frank Marsh had also asked what happens if a candidate files for the Legislature before then.

"Such a filing, if tendered, should be accepted, but it will be nullified when the new legislative apportionment statute becomes effective," the opinion said.

The opinion by the attorney general also ruled out the acceptance of a filing accompanied by a county treasurer's receipt based on the old fee after LB540 becomes law.

Postal Savings Dept. Closed Out

Falls City (Mo)—The postal savings department at the Falls City Post Office, which had over 400 accounts with about half a million dollars in them about 15 years ago, has been closed out.

Assistant Postmaster Kenneth Gaither said that it has been the policy of the Postal Department to close out its savings department in a office where there are fewer than 20 accounts if the banks and savings and loan institutions in the community offer adequate and safe facilities.

The fact that the Post Office Department pays only two per cent on postal savings accounts is believed to be the main reason savers have transferred their funds to other institutions.

Postal Savings Dept. Closed Out

Falls City (A)—The postal savings department at the Falls City Post Office, which had over 400 accounts with about half a million dollars in them about 15 years ago, has been closed out.

Assistant Postmaster Kenneth Galtner said that it has been the policy of the Postal Department to close out its savings department in any office where there are fewer than 20 accounts if the banks and savings and loan institutions in the community offer adequate and safe facilities.

The fact that the Post Office Department pays only two per cent on postal savings accounts is believed to be the main reason savers have transferred their funds to other institutions.

Ex-Dictator's Case Now In High Court

... EXTRADITION BATTLED

Washington (AP) — Former dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez's lawyers took to the Supreme Court again Thursday the battle to halt his extradition to his native Venezuela. It assured him another day in the United States.

Justice Arthur J. Goldberg listened to 2 1/2 hours of high technical legal arguments in a court conference room and said he would rule Friday on the question raised.

Government counsel assured Goldberg no effort would be made, meanwhile, to take Perez Jimenez out of the country.

In Miami, the Dade County sheriff was instructed to release Perez Jimenez for extradition upon order from the U.S. marshal. County Atty. Darrey Davis issued the instructions, removing state court barriers to the extradition.

The Supreme Court earlier refused to enter the case and Secretary of State Dean Rusk approved this week extradition of Perez Jimenez to Venezuela to face charges of embezzling $13 million of public money while in office. He denies the charges.

His lawyers based their appeal to the Supreme Court on a section of law which says a prisoner held in extradition proceedings who was not "delivered out of the United States" within two calendar months after his commitment may be ordered discharged.

The contention that the former Venezuelan strongman has been in jail more than two months and is now entitled to release was made by Eugene Gressman, Washington attorney, and Edward N. Moore, Miami lawyer.

Perez Jimenez was first jailed in Miami on June 16, 1961. He was out on bail for some time, but was jailed again on Dec. 12, 1962 and still is imprisoned.

No Precedent

Goldberg asked the lawyers if there were any legal precedents to guide him. The lawyers said there were none.

The move was opposed by government counsel and lawyers for Venezuela.

In another development Thursday, the Florida District Court of Appeals dismissed without action an appeal by the Dade County sheriff to determine whether federal or state courts have control over detention of Perez Jimenez.

The federal government wants to extradite Perez Jimenez but the sheriff, who has custody of the prisoner, has a hold order by Circuit Judge Robert H. Anderson intended to keep Perez Jimenez in Florida pending decision on a paternity suit.

The 49-year old Perez Jimenez claims the Venezuelan charges against him are intended to extract political revenge. He says his life would be in danger if he returned.

Injured Lincoln Girl Now Listed As 'Satisfactory'

Accident victim Penny McCabe, 14, of 5430 Fairlane Drive, was listed in satisfactory condition for the first time since an accident Monday evening, Bryan Memorial Hospital officials reported.

Until Thursday her condition had been termed "serious."

The Safety Patrol said Penny was a passenger in a car driven by her 16-year-old sister, Cathleen, that left a county road about 6 miles south-east of Ashland.

Hospital officials said Penny suffered multiple fractures and a head injury.

Omahan Killed In Copter Crash

San Diego, Calif. (UPI) — Seven Navy fliers were lost at sea in the crash of two carrier-based aircraft operating on opposite sides of the north Pacific, the navy reported.

Four were killed Thursday when a SH-3A jet helicopter flying off the carrier Bennington plunged into the Gulf of Alaska. The dead included Aviation Sonarman 2c Frederick John Bader, son of Frederick Clinton Bader of Omaha, Neb.

The other 3 died Wednesday when an SF-2F tracker returning to the carrier Kearsarge crashed off the coast of Japan. One of the crewmen aboard the tracker survived.

Boy Electrocuted While Scrubbing

Omaha (UPI) — Joseph John Kolar, 16, Omaha, was electrocuted while scrubbing the floor at a Hinky-Dinky store with an electric scrubber.

Jack Anzalone, 16, said he heard Kolar shout: "Turn it off! Turn it off!"

Anzalone got a shock while trying to free Kolar. He said Kolar's hand was frozen to the handle. Richard Deitering, another employee, pulled the plug.

Workers In State Shorted $684,652

Certain Nebraska employees covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act (minimum wage) were shorted $684,652 in fiscal 1963, according to the U.S. Labor Department in Kansas City, Mo.

Nebraska's known violations make up part of an 8 Midwestern state total of $4,005,667 due to 23,799 workers because of minimum wage and overtime pay shortages.

The minimum wage goes up from $1.15 an hour to $1.25 on Sept. 3, under terms of the 1961 Fair Labor Standards Act amendments.

Labor officials also found 108 illegally employed minors in Nebraska in 1963.

Jack Anzalone, 16, said he heard Kolar shout: "Turn it off! Turn it off!"

Anzalone got a shock while trying to free Kolar. He said Kolar's hand was frozen to the handle. Richard Deitering, another employee, pulled the plug.

Certain Nebraska employees covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act (minimum wage) were shorted $684,652 in fiscal 1963, according to the U.S. Labor Department in Kansas City, Mo.

Nebraska's known violations make up part of an 8 Midwestern state total of $4,005,667 due to 23,799 workers because of minimum wage and overtime pay shortages.

The minimum wage goes up from $1.15 an hour to $1.25 on Sept. 3, under terms of the 1961 Fair Labor Standards Act amendments.

Labor officials also found 108 illegally employed minors in Nebraska in 1963.

Jack Anzalone, 16, said he heard Kolar shout: "Turn it off! Turn it off!"

Anzalone got a shock while trying to free Kolar. He said Kolar's hand was frozen to the handle. Richard Deitering, another employee, pulled the plug.

Be Careful When School Buses Unload

Capt. O. H. Witt of the Nebraska Safety Patrol said Thursday "most fatal accidents involving school buses occur when the bus is unloading and children are crossing directly in front of it into traffic."

Witt addressed 100 bus drivers who held the first of 6 school bus conferences at University High School.

Witt said the bus driver is on the road every day "and acts as public relations man for the school. He also sets an example for the children, future drivers."

Also addressing the conference was Lloyd C. Jenkins, safety supervisor for the Lincoln schools.

Other conferences are scheduled at Norfolk Senior High, Aug. 16; Hastings Senior High, Aug. 19; North Platte Adams Junior High, Aug. 20; Alliance Junior High, Aug. 21; and Alhambra High, Aug. 22.

Helping sponsor the meetings are the state education and health departments, assisted by the Safety Patrol and Red Cross.

Youth Committee Promises Meeting On Juvenile Law

The Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth Thursday promised a meeting of the legislative committee will be called to discuss the controversial LB567.

This involves the section of LB567 which bars juvenile court records from the news media and the public.

In a statement issued Thursday in answer to a Wednesday request for the reconsideration from the Nebraska Juvenile Court Judges Association, Mrs. Clifford Jorgensen of Lincoln said the meeting will be called as soon as all members of the steering committee of the legislative committee of the Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth are available.
